"YEGG-MEN" BOLDLY ROB P. R. R. OFFICE; GET $70

Early Evening Raid Cleaned Everything in Cash Drawer.

MADE QUICK GET-AWAY

While Men Were Passing Passenger Station on Way Home From Work, Thieves Rip Open Screen From Window and Rob Ticket Office.

The most daring robbery committed in Bellefonte in a long time was that early Monday evening when "yeggmen" pried loose a brass window screen at the Pennsylvania Railroad ticket office and rifled the money drawer of all its contents. The thieves effected an entrance to the ticket office, cleaned up the cash drawer and escaped in a few minutes time, leaving no trace of their identity and little or nothing in the shape of a clue for the police and railroad officers who are working on the case.

Railroad officials decline to say just how much was stolen. The money represented the sales for the afternoon trains to Tyrone and Snow Shoe. The amount was possibly upward of $70.

"Yeggmen" are thieves who devote their attention exclusively to robbing railroad stations. They go heavily armed and when interrupted in their work invariably fight desperately to escape. The men who committed Monday evening's robbery were experts and to all appearances had carefully planned the job in advance. Everything was timed to a nicety and they were able to secure the money and get away possibly one hour before the crime was discovered.

As well as may be determined, the robbery was committed between 6.10 and 6.30 o'clock. Agent Harry Hutchinson closed up the office at 6.10 o'clock. One of his assistants, John Scholl, re-opened the office at 6.40, but noticed nothing wrong and proceeded to work at the telegraph desk. Some time later Agent Hutchinson returned to the office and sat down at his desk, which is but a few feet from the cash drawer. He noticed nothing wrong until he opened the ticket windows to let in some air. A glance then took in the situation. The empty cash drawer stood out an inch or two. The brass railing, or screen, of the ticket selling window on the ladies side of the station had been wrenched loose and forced outward at the lower right corner. That told the whole story.

So far as may be learned there were two persons in the plot to rob the ticket office. Persons who passed along the station platform between 6.10 and 6.30 recalled observing a man sitting inside the waiting room, apparently a traveler waiting for the 8.20 train. It is supposed that he was what is known as the "look-out," and that at the time his confederate was engaged in looting the cash drawer. The man seated in the waiting room was undoubtedly stationed there to warn his confederate in the event of the approach of others and if necessary to aid in fighting their way out should the robbery be discovered. It is not improbable that a second "look-out" was stationed in the men's waiting room to guard against station officials or others entering at that point. However, nobody happened to enter the station, which at that hour is usually deserted, and the thieves were able to work without any interruption. In fact, the robbery was not discovered for such a long time that the thieves could easily have traveled many miles from town and thus been perfectly free from suspicion. It is supposed that the thieves had loitered in and about the station for a day or two, sizing up the situation and familiarizing themselves with the location of the ticket windows, cash drawer and also avenues of escape in ease of emergency. They kept themselves so well under cover, however, that station officials were unable to recall having observed any strangers remaining an unusual time either inside or outside the waiting rooms.

Several tramps were picked up by the police on Monday night but there was nothing about them to indicate that they had any hand in the robbery. Railroad officers from Tyrone arrived in town on Tuesday morning and joined in the search for the thieves, although up to this time their efforts have accomplished nothing. For a time there was a rumor that the police were on the trail of a man suspected of some knowledge of the crime because he happened to drop into the Bush House Cigar Store to have a $10 bill changed. It later developed that the man was a resident of Buffalo Run, that he had first called at the station with a $10 bill to buy a ticket to Warren and that Agent Hutchinson, having no money left in the cash drawer, had asked him to go out and have the bill changed. For all the railroad officials were able to tell, the thieves may have stepped on the 8.20 train for Lock Haven and in that manner made good their escape.

NARROWLY ESCAPED DEATH

Lemuel Clark, of Blanchard, Overcome by Foul Air in Well.

Lemuel Clark, of Blanchard, narrowly escaped being suffocated by foul air in a well at the Samuel Gardner place, in Beech Creek, on Monday morning, last. But for the timely assistance of Frank Koons and John Fritz, Mr. Clark would have been killed by deadly gas. As it was it required an hour or more to revive him after his body had been lifted from the well by means of a rope.

The well in question was about 20 feet deep. Mr. Clark was engaged in cleaning it and decended to the bottom when he was suddenly overcome by the foul air. Mr. Koons and Mr. Fritz, who were standing at the entrance to the well, noticed Mr. Clark keel over. They were quickly lowered into the well and with no little risk to themselves succeeded in fastening a rope about Mr. Clark's body. By the time they had this accomplished both were becoming faint as a result of inhaling the gas.

All three were hauled to the top of the well, the fresh air quickly reviving Mr. Koons and Mr. Fritz. Mr. Clark was unconscious and it was seen that he was in a serious condition. Dr. J. E. Tibbens, of Beech Creek, was summoned and after some time he succeeded in reviving the unfortunate man. After a time Mr. Clark was removed to his home.

REV. N. S. BAILEY DEAD

Former Well Known Resident of Bellefonte Passes Away Suddenly.

Word was received in Bellefonte this week of the death on Monday night, last, of Rev. Newton S. Bailey at his late home at New Paris, Bedford County. Mr. Bailey was ill but a short time and it is believed that his death was hastened by the intense heat. As pastor of the United Brethren church, at New Paris, he occupied the pulpit as usual on Sunday evening. He mentioned that he was not feeling very well but attributed this fact to the heat. On Monday afternoon he became ill and died that night at 11 o'clock.

Deceased was a son of William Devou Bailey and Eliza Smith Bailey and was born 55 years ago in Wellsboro, Tioga County. For a number of years he resided in Bellefonte, being engaged as an editor on the "Keystone Gazette" and later editing publications of his own. He was a devout, Christian gentleman and by all who knew him he was held in high esteem.

In more recent years he entered the ministry and became a preacher in the United Brethren church. About four years ago he removed from Bellefonte and his latest charge was at New Paris. A letter from Mr. Bailey some weeks ago to the editor of "The Republican" told of his field of labor in Bedford County and of his delight in advancing the cause of the Master.

Surviving are a widow and the following sisters and brother: Mrs. William B. Rankin, of Bellefonte; Mrs. Mary Elmore, of Wilkinsburg, and W. F. Bailey, the last named of Illinois.

The body was taken to Williamsport for interment at that place today.

ASK LIGHTING FRANCHISE

Lock Haven Syndicate Seeks Privilege of Stringing Wires Here.

An ordinance was introduced in Bellefonte Council, at the regular meeting on Monday night of last week, granting to a Lock Haven syndicate a franchise for furnishing heat, light and power in Bellefonte. Action was deferred. The franchise is to be in the name of the "Centre County Light, Heat & Power Company", those mentioned in the company being Luther M. Patterson, trustee for Fred Kreamer, H. S. Satterlee, H. T. Hall, "and others." It is set forth that the company shall be empowered "to erect and maintain poles, and wires for the transmission of electric current for the purpose of furnishing light, heat and power" in Bellefonte borough.

The promoters of the proposed company are also behind the proposed Scootac Power Company, which recently secured franchises in Lock Haven.

It is understood that the general plan in hand involves taking over the Green mill plant, at Milesburg, and the power rights of what is known as "Dowdy's Hole", below Curtin. A deed for the latter was recently recorded, the land and water rights passing into the hands of Councilman G. Fred Musser, of Bellefonte, and others.

David Hendershot Dead.

David Hendershot, well known in and about Bellefonte, died on Wednesday, July 5. He had been in failing health for some time. Burial was made on Friday, July 7, services being held from the furnace church.

DIGGING THROUGH WALL WHEN SHERIFF ARRIVED

Joe Palmer Worked Three Nights to Escape From County Jail.

NOW IN STEEL CELL

Officers Believe Prisoner Arrested on Petty Charge, is Wanted Elsewhere for Some Serious Crime—Operated Like An Expert.

One of the most daring attempts to escape from the Bellefonte jail was that made last week by Joseph Palmer. Due to the alertness of Sheriff Hurley the scheme was frustrated a short time before the hour selected by Palmer to break away. Palmer's desperate effort to escape leads the local authorities to believe that he is wanted elsewhere for some serious crime.

For three nights Palmer, with all the skill of an expert, had silently dug his way through the massive wall forming the rear of a cell. An unusually large stone which he encountered was too heavy for him to remove on the third night of his digging and he was forced to postpone the time for him to escape into the jail yard. It was this delay which resulted in the discovery of his scheme. When Sheriff Hurley confronted Palmer with the knowledge that his scheme had been detected, the prisoner coolly remarked that in another night's time he would have been gone and far enough away to be safe.

Palmer was at once placed in the steel cell occupied by Bert Delige until the day of the latter's execution for the murder of Mrs. John Baudis. He will be kept there until his trial. Palmer was lodged in the jail several months ago on the charge of petty larceny at Monument. He was brought to Bellefonte when released from the Lock Haven jail, where he served a short sentence for theft. By the time he would have been tried here and in the event of his conviction, Palmer would have already served all, or nearly all, of his sentence, the charge being a more or less trifling one. It is because his bold attempt to break jail was so unnecessary that Sheriff Hurley is confident the prisoner has some grave charge hanging over his head and wanted to get away before his whereabouts might be made known to the police of outside cities. A report, thus far unconfirmed, is that Palmer some time ago escaped from a penitentiary in West Virginia or Virginia.

While unable to prove it Sheriff Hurley suspects that other prisoners in the jail were aware of Palmer's scheme to escape and that they must have heard him at work during the three nights that he removed a large pile of stone and mortar from the jail wall. Whether other prisoners were aware of what was going on and remained silent expecting or hoping to escape with Palmer is a matter of conjecture. Either the other prisoners heard Palmer digging through the stone wall or the prisoner worked so quietly and with such skill as to at once stamp him as an old hand as a jail breaker.

Palmer occupied a second floor cell on the south side and well to the rear of the jail. At some time in years gone by the floor of that particular cell had been patched. Palmer, when he undertook to escape, removed the patch from the floor of his cell and thus made his way into the cell directly underneath. From the lower cell he made his way across the corridor and into a cell on the north side. It was from this cell that Palmer started to dig his way through the wall. Flanking this cell on the one side is a dungeon-like cell containing a small window. Palmer used an iron strip, ripped from his bed, and also a piece of iron pipe, taken from the top of the stairway railing, on the second floor. He worked entirely at night, always restoring the piece of iron pipe to its place and returning to his regular cell in time to be present when all cells would be unlocked in the morning and the several prisoners given the freedom of the corridor.

With nothing to aid him but the slender strip of iron and the short piece of iron pipe, Palmer started to work to dig through the thick stone wall inside the cell adjoining the dungeon. As fast as stone and mortar were removed from the wall they were placed by Palmer inside the dungeon. A quick escape through the wall would have been comparatively easy had Palmer not encountered the one unusually large and heavy stone. This necessitated his removing a greater quantity of stone and mortar than he anticipated and, of course, required a longer time in which he had to continue digging. As it was, he had the inside of the

AVIATOR BADLY FOOLED MOOSE PICNIC CROWD

Young Bauman Lacked Part of Engine And Also His Nerve.

PICNIC MANAGERS HOT

Acted in Good Faith in Advertising Aeroplane Flights and Promptly Repudiated Bauman When He Failed to Carry Out Contract.

Although the mercury was soaring near the 100-mark, forcing many persons to remain indoors, a large crowd attended the Moose picnic at Hecla Park on the Fourth of July. The only disappointment attending the big event was the rank failure of Warren J. Bauman, the Lock Haven young aviator, to carry out his contract to make two flights in his Curtis type aeroplone. Young Bauman had his machine on the ground but when it came time for him to display the necessary nerve to make the flight he flunked. He gave as his reason that a vital part of his engine was missing, a fact unknown to the picnic committee up to that minute. The picnic management, more keenly disappointed even than the spectators, promptly and very properly refused to pay Bauman.

In behalf of the picnic management a statement of the exact facts in the case is hereby made. After a personal interview with Bauman, at which he declared and reiterated his possesssing both the machine and the nerve to make aeroplane flights, he signed a contract for two exhibitions at Hecla Park. He was paid $25 when the contract was signed. He was to receive $75 when his aeroplane, ready for the flights, was delivered on the ground at Hecla Park. He was to receive, in addition, one-fourth of the gate receipts. As stated, he received the $25 when he signed the contract. A check for $75 was turned over to him on the day before the picnic, Bauman receiving it with the representation that he and his machine were in readiness for the advertised flights.

It was not until almost noon on the day of the picnic that Bauman confessed to the picnic management that his aeroplane was not complete and therefore not in shape to go up. He then stated that a part of his engine had not been shipped from the factory, but that he was looking for it on either of two trains arriving at Lock Haven during the early part of the afternoon. While the members of the picnic committee to whom Bauman made this eleventh-hour confession were justly angry they decided that in fairness to him they would give him the benefit of the doubt and await the arrival of the two trains from Philadelphia. The trains arrived all right, but the missing link to Bauman's aeroplane didn't. Bauman, in a more or less indifferent manner, remarked that he couldn't make the promised flights.

The picnic committee, acting in absolutely good faith all through, ordered that public announcement be made in the baseball grounds as soon as Bauman admitted he could not make the morning flight. The chief regret of the committee, aside from disappointing the public, was that tickets of admission to the morning baseball game had been sold with the representation that each ticket also held good for the aeroplane flight. When the second afternoon train from Philadelphia arrived and Bauman was unable to produce the missing part of his engine, the picnic committee posted in conspicuous places large cards announcing that there would be no aeroplane flight in the afternoon and warning all persons of the fact so that none might purchase tickets to the baseball grounds under any misapprehension. It is interesting to note in this connection that the crowd at the afternoon baseball game, by which time it was known to all that there would be no aeroplane flight, was larger than that at the morning game when everybody naturally expected a flight.

Early in the afternoon, and as soon as the picnic committee had posted its notices repudiating Bauman for not living up to his contract, the would-be aviator called at the committee headquarters and wanted the $75 check cashed. The committee took the check and after an admission by Bauman that as his machine stood on the grounds it was not in shape for the flights contracted for payment of the check was refused and the check was retained. Bauman protested against this, claiming that it was not his fault that the missing part of the machine had not been shipped. He vigorously asserted that the machine was complete without the missing part,

MRS. TWITMIRE DEAD

Was Devoted Wife of Well Known Business Man of Bellefonte.

After an acute illness of two weeks, which was in reality the culmination of a general breaking down in health eleven years ago, Mrs. Wilbur T. Twitmire died at her late home in Bellefonte, on Monday, July 10, at 5 o'clock P. M. So well and favorably was she known in the community that the news of her death was received with sincere sorrow and regret by all.

The deceased was born at Unionville, April 20, 1845, making her age 66 years, 2 months and 20 days. Before her marriage she was Miss Nannie Alexander. She graduated from the Millersville State Normal School in the class of 1866. She was married at her home on March 29, 1870, to Mr. Twitmire and with him located in Bellefonte, making this place her home to the time of her death. Endowed with a genial, sunny disposition Mrs. Twitmire was held in affectionate esteem by a large circle of friends. From early girlhood she was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, uniting with the church when she was but 12 years of age. Throughout her life she was an active worker in religious causes and was especially interested in the W. C. T. U. This activity she maintained until about eleven years ago, when her health failed. Funeral services will be held today at 2.30 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Dr. E. H. Yocum, after which interment will be made in the Union cemetery.

Surviving and mourning the death of a loving wife and a kind and devoted mother are a husband and five children, as follows: Mrs. J. H. Pickle, of Millersville, Pa.; Alton, of Asbury Park, N. J.; Mrs. Philip D. Waddle, of Bellefonte; Joseph of Sunbury, and Dr. Wilbur, of Lancaster. These brothers and sisters also survive: Mills Alexander, of Julian; Mrs. John Stover, Mrs. Samuel Emerick and J. B. Alexander, of near Unionville.

DROWNED IN RIVER

Former Centre County Boy Lost Life by Capsizing of Sail Boat.

The sad news was received here on Monday of the drowning of Belmont Beck, a former Centre County boy, in the Delaware river, in Philadelphia, on Sunday, last. A companion, John H. Kline, was also drowned. The two young men were employed by the Bell Telephone Company in Philadelphia and on Sunday, last, they went out for a sail on the river. When they failed to return fears were entertained that they had been drowned. This was confirmed when their capsized boat was found drifting near Florence, New Jersey. On Monday Beck's body was recovered from the river near Palmyra, New Jersey.

Young Beck was a son of Charles S. Beck, of Huston, Centre County. He was about 23 years of age and was a graduate in the electrical department of the Williamson Trade School, near Philadelphia. He was a splendid young man and was held in high regard by his employers and also by a large number of friends. For several years he made his home in Philadelphia and was rapidly forging to the front in the business world. The sympathy of the community is with the young man's family in the hour of their sad bereavement. The body will be brought home for interment and will be accompanied by Miss Grace Beck, a cousin, who is located at Atlantic City.

Death at Blanchard.

Mrs. Susan Wagner, widow of the late Joseph Wagner, died at her late home in Blanchard on Saturday morning, last, aged 73 years. Deceased was a resident of that place for many years and was well known to and highly respected by the people of the community. Funeral services were held on Monday and interment made in the Baptist cemetery, opposite the late home of the deceased. Surviving are the following children: Mrs. Mary Skillman, of Jersey Shore; Mrs. W. E. Weaver, of Ridgway; Mrs. Ellen Epley, of Coffeyville, Kan.; John, of Big Run; David, of Lock Haven, Harvey, of Beech Creek township, and George, at home.

Hospital Notes.

Operations—Mrs. Frank Bartley, Samuel Shultz, Bellefonte; Roy Miles, Pitcairn; Rankin and William Furey, Pittsburg; Ralph Loose, Millheim; Mrs. Mary Wilkins, Linden Hall.

Admitted for treatment—Mrs. Emma Bathurst, of Curtin; Henry Kline, of Bellefonte.

Discharged—Mrs. Emma Kline, Milesburg; Mrs. Anna Kreps, Bellefonte; Wilson Rogers, Dale Summit; Robert Ebden, Wilmington, Del.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Willis, of State College, a son; also a son born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hughes, of Bellefonte.

18 patients in the hospital.

NAME ALL CANDIDATES ON SEPTEMBER 30TH.

Choose County Borough and Township Officers on That Date.

AT UNIFORM PRIMARIES

Republican and Democratic County Chairmen Adopt Plan to Have All Nominations Made at One Time—To Hold No Caucuses.

Formal announcement was made yesterday that nomination of candidates for county and also all borough and township officers will be made this year at the uniform primaries, September 30. The announcement sets at rest all doubt as to the time and method for nominating candidates in the several boroughs and townships in the county.

There was some talk of nominating borough and township candidates by caucuses on October 7. County Commissioners Woodring, Zimmerman and Dunlap, desiring to adopt the time and method most acceptable to both parties, this week submitted the matter to Republican County Chairman Quigley and Democratic County Chairman Kimport. It was finally decided to make all of the several nominations at the one time and also to follow the same method as will be employed to select the several candidates for county offices, namely the uniform primaries.

With this plan in operation every candidate for nomination, whether county, borough or township, shall file a petition for nomination with the County Commissioners, as required by the uniform primaries law. Each name, for which a petition is properly filed, will then be on the ballot for the office in question in that particular borough or township. Where there are a number of candidates for the several offices in boroughs or townships the primary ballot used there will be unusually large. With the exception of the candidates for county offices a different ballot for each party will have to be printed for each borough and township.

YOUNG LADY KILLED

Hurled From Buggy Down Steep Embankment at Philipsburg.

Miss Mary Jacobs, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jacobs, of Pine Grove Mills, was instantly killed while driving near Philipsburg on Monday evening. The horse which she was driving, while making a sharp turn in a narrow road, plunged down a 15-foot embankment, carrying the buggy and occupants along. As it reached the bottom of the embankment the horse reared and fell upon the buggy, crushing Miss Jacobs to death. August Brendt, who occupied the buggy with Miss Jacobs, was badly bruised but escaped serious injury.

A Strange Disappearance.

Claude Hoy, a son of Benner Hoy, of Lemont, on Sunday, last, figured in a strange disappearance from North Bend, at which place he has been employed as an operator in the railroad station. The young man left his office about 2 o'clock on Sunday afternoon and failed to return. He had been more or less melancholy and it was feared that he had become lost. It developed that he had become bewildered while walking in the woods and later was directed to Lock Haven by a party of campers. On Monday he appeared at Eagleville and late that night arrived at the home of his brother, Ray Hoy, in Bellefonte. The young man was almost exhausted as a result of his experience and later was removed to his father's home, where he probably will remain until restored to health.

Death at Sandy Ridge.

Levi Kennedy, a well known resident of Sandy Ridge, died on Sunday night, last, from dropsy and other complications. Deceased was aged 59 years, 9 months and 4 days and was a highly respected citizen and resided at Sandy Ridge for many years. Surviving are four sons and three daughters. Funeral services were held on Tuesday, interment in the Stumptown cemetery, near Osceola.

Died at Southern Pines.

Miss Mary Tate, aged 20 years, daughter of Potter Tate, died on Saturday, July 8, at Southern Pines. The body was removed to her father's home, at Lewistown, where services were held on Monday evening. A brief service was held in the Buffalo Run church on Tuesday, after which interment was made in the Meyers cemetery.

DESPATCHES THAT TOLD THRILLING STORY OF VICTORY BY UNION ARMY AT GETTYSBURG

I. G. Alexander, one of our valued readers at Unionville, a day or two before the Fourth of July brought to "The Republican" office an old newspaper containing an article especially appropriate for publication on the "Great Day." The newspaper was the old "Philadelphia Morning Post," of date of July 4, 1863, and the article in question was a running report of the battle of Gettysburg, made up chiefly of despatches from the field telling of the glorious victory for the Union army.

Mr. Alexander is an old soldier, participating in all of the three days fighting at Gettysburg and escaping being wounded. He was a member of Company H, 56th Penna. Vols. He is still hale and hearty and would readily respond again in the event of a call for volunteers to defend the grand old flag.

"The Philadelphia Morning Post" correspondent, writing from the field of battle, sent his newspaper a despatch at 6.30 in the morning of July 3. It announced that the "battle is on again," day-break having been ushered in by a tremendous burst of musketry on Culp's Hill. A second despatch, one hour later says the fighting still continues on Culp's Hill and that the roar and crash of the firing in the dark woods is appalling. This despatch concludes with: "We all feel hopeful and believe our troops will succeed in recapturing the works." At 9 o'clock that morning another despatch was received, this telling of the fight still being waged on Culp's Hill and that "our troops are forcing the rebels back." It is stated that Hancock the previous night succeeded in completely restoring the Union lines so as to connect with Little Round Top which, the correspondent adds, "we have now heavily fortified and which makes our left impregnable."

The succeeding despatches lead on to the announcement of the great victory. They follow:

GETTYSBURG, July 3, 11 a. m.

Great cheering is heard, mingled with the firing on Culp's Hill. It is believed that our men are gaining ground.

GETTYSBURG, July 3, 11.30 a. m.

Good news from our right. Our troops have succeeded in driving the enemy out of our works on Culp's Hill and our whole line is once more intact. Every one is rejoicing.

GETTYSBURG, July 3, 12.30 noon.

Some important movement is evidently taking place opposite our left centre. The enemy is seen concentrating on Cemetery Ridge and placing a great number of batteries in position.

GETTYSBURG, July 3, 1.30 p. m.

An appalling artillery duel is now in progress. It extends over a line a mile in length. The enemy opened half an hour ago with all their artillery and were promptly replied to by a hundred guns from our side. The whole heavens are filled with bursting shells and screaming missiles. The roar is awful.

GETTYSBURG, July 3, 3 p. m.

The artillery fire has continued since 1 o'clock without intermission. The destruction must be great. We can see from the Cemetery caissons exploding and cannon being dismounted in all directions. The scene, though awful, is sublime. The firing is at this moment abating and on our side is almost suspended.

GETTYSBURG, July 3, 3.15 p. m.

A great attack is now being made on our left centre by a powerful column of rebels. We can see them advancing in hosts. Their lines are half a mile in length. They have a mile to march before they reach our line. All our artillery has now opened upon them and we can see them falling back in hundreds. In a few minutes they will strike our line and the fight will be at close quarters.

GETTYSBURG, 3, 4.30 p. m.

We have won a great victory. The fight is over and the rebel lines hurled back in wild disorder. Longstreet's whole corps seems to have been swept away by our fire. The field is covered with rebel dead. Wild cheers ring out from every part of our lines. Thousands of rebel prisoners are being brought in. Sheaves of battle flags and thousands of small arms are being gathered in by our men. The rejoicing amongst our men is indescribable.

GETTYSBURG, July 3, 5 p. m.

Our victory is more complete than we could dare to hope for. An immense column of the enemy, at least 20,000 strong, attacked our left centre and were utterly destroyed by our fire. The column consisted of the greater part of Longstreet's corps and but a few of them are left. Nearly all of them were either killed, wounded or are now prisoners in our hands. I hear that Hancock, Gibbons and Webb are all severely wounded. The Philadelphia brigade is almost destroyed. They met the most violent rush of the enemy and lost terribly. Col. O'Kane, of the 69th., is killed and there is hardly a field officer left in the brigade. Cushing's, Arnold's Rorty's and Woodruff's batteries have suffered severely. Cushing and Rorty are killed. The assault of the enemy was made on the line of the Second corps. There is a movement on the left of our lines. Gen. Meade has gone there and it is supposed that he is organizing a counter attack.

GETTYSBURG, July 3, 10 p. m.

Our victory grows more complete as we get time to realize its magnitude. It looks as though nearly all of Longstreet's corps had been destroyed. The field in front of the Second corps, where the brunt of the attack fell, is covered with rebel dead. In front of the Philadelphia brigade they lie in great piles. Hundreds of rebel officers are among the fallen. Gen. Armistead, of Pickett's division, fell within our lines. He was shot through the body and is now dying. The rebel Generals Garnet and Kemper fell in front of the 69th and 71st Penna. Volunteers. All the field officers of the former regiment are killed. The slaughter on both sides has indeed been frightful. Our men are busy gathering in the wounded, many of whom must die during the night for want of proper attention.

It is said that General Hancock is dangerously wounded. Gen. Sickles, the commander of the 3rd corps, who was wounded yesterday, had his leg amputated last night. He is now doing well.

Our artillery suffered greatly in today's battle. Nearly all the guns along the front of the Second corps have been dismounted and almost all the caissons and ammunition chests were blown up. Cushing and Rorty, battery commanders, were both killed. One battery had every horse except six killed. I learned that Gen. Meade abandoned the idea of a counter attack as the rugged nature of our country on the left would not admit of it. Everything is now quiet and profound silence reigns over the field, except the moans of the wounded and the rattling of the ambulances. The firing has entirely ceased. It is believed the enemy will at once abandon their present position and march south, but the marching will tell. Not a light is visible along the enemy's line, but sounds indicating moving trains of artillery are distinctly audible. It is likely that they are already retreating. It is hardly possible to get any further information tonight. Every one is worn out and exhausted by the past three days' fatigue and fighting. The men are too tired even to cheer and have settled down to sleep. Whole brigades are lying in line of battle sound asleep, the dead and the living mingled together. Tomorrow we can see the full extent of our victory.

The foregoing despatches record the story ot the fighting and eventually the Union victory on July 3. The story of the glorious July 4th needs no despatch to refresh its memory. The despatches of the second day's battle were as follows:

GETTYSBURG, JULY 2, 6 A. M.

Gen. Meade has determined to fight here. All our troops, except the Sixth corps, are now up. The different corps as they arrived upon the field were placed in position by Gen. Meade in person. All is quiet at this hour. We can see the enemy in the streets of the town, and their main line of battery about a mile distant. We occupy the high ground called Seminary Ridge. We can plainly see them putting their artillery in position. Our line extends from the Cemetery to Culp's Hill on the right, and our left reaches out towards Sherfey's farm and the Devil's Den. Confidence is once more restored and great hopes expressed that we may today compensate by a victory of our defeat of yesterday.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 2, 7 A. M.

Firing has commenced on our left. It is believed to be on the Emmittsburg road in the vicinity of Sherfey's farm.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 2, 10.30. A. M.

The firing on our left still continues at intervals, but it is not thought to be serious. Our troops are busily fortifying our position and are in good spirits.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 2, 3.30, P. M.

The firing on our left is becoming serious. Crashes of musketry mingled with some artillery firing.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 2, 5 P. M.

The fighting on our left, is at this moment terrible and extends along the Emmittsburg road to Sherfey's farm and the Devil's Den. Little Round Top is enveloped in smoke and heavy firing is heard coming from the woods in that direction. The firing seems to be extending along our entire line. Just now a tremendous crash of musketry is heard on Culp's Hill.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 2, 7 P. M.

The day is drawing to a close, but the fighting still continues without any abatement. Since shortly after 3 o'clock there has been one continual roar of artillery and musketry. I learn that we have been driven back from our advanced position at Sherfey's peach orchards but that we have succeeded in driving the rebels from Little Round Top and our troops now occupy that important position. Our losses have been very heavy, especially in the Third corps.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 2, 7.30 P. M.

I just now learned that Gen. Sickles has lost a leg.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 2, 8 P. M.

The fighting still continues, and our generals show some anxiety. Impossible as yet to learn the result of today's fighting.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 2, 9 P. M.

A tremendous attack has just been repulsed on East Cemetery Hill, at a point held by Rickett's Battery.

The day is over and I might as well admit that the situation is grave. The fighting since 3 o'clock has been of the most sanguinary character, and our losses appaling. On our right the enemy has driven us back about half a mile and they now occupy the Devil's Den and Sherfey's farm. On our right it is believed that the rebels have captured our works at Culp's Hill, and that they now occupy them. Our army has not lost heart, but it must be confessed that the situation is critical. It seems that Longstreet made the first attack of the day on the left of our line. His forces came on in overwhelming numbers, forcing the Third corps back from its position in the peach orchard and the Devil's Den. Then a heavy attacking column sought to capture Little Round Top but were driven back, and we now hold that important hill which makes our left flank comparatively safe. Next a powerful attack was made upon our works at Culp's Hill, and owing to the fact of our troops having been withdrawn from that point in order to reinforce our right, the confederate was successful and they tonight occupy our works. Then just at dusk, a column, said to be led by the Louisiana Tigers, made a tremendous attack upon our position on East Cemetery Hill. Owing to the heroism of Rickett's Battery the attack was unsuccessful. It is difficult to get information tonight, but we have, no doubt, lost severely. Gen. Sickles had his leg carried off by a round shot. Gens. Weed, Zook, Cross and Vincent were killed on our left during the attack at this point. Col. O'Rourk 140th New York, who had just graduated from West Point, was killed on Little Round Top at the head of his regiment.

The Pennsylvania Reserves made a splendid and successful charge at dusk, in which Col. C. F. Taylor, of the Fort Bucktails, was killed.

I learn that a wheat field, on the left of the peach orchard, on Sherfey's farm, is literally covered with dead.

Gen. Graham, after being badly wounded, unfortunately fell into the hands of the enemy.

The surgeons are doing all that they can to succor the thousands of wounded. No time tonight to think of the dead, who I fear are also numbered by thousands.

Daylight will, no doubt, see a renewal of the battle, and while it seems to have gone against us today, yet all are hopeful of tomorrow.

Gen. Hancock especially distinguished himself today, and is now in command of the left wing of the army.

I heard that there was a cavalry fight on our right today, but have no means of authenticating it.

Gen. Meade's headquarters are just back of the Cemetery, and our troops are camped and sleeping, among the graves and tombs.

The story of the first day's battle is also recorded in numerous despatches from the field, as follows:

GETTYSBURG, JULY 1, 10 A. M.

Heavy fighting has been going on for an hour past. The firing seems to be in the direction of McPherson's woods, where Buford's cavalry has been picketing since yesterday. It is rumored that Hill's corps of Lee's army camped at Cashtown, six miles from here last night.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 1, 11.00 A. M.

Gen. Reynolds, commanding the First corps, army of the Potomac has just been killed. His body was brought into town in an ambulance. He was shot through the head.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 1, 11 O'CLOCK.

Wadsworth's division of the First corps is at this moment engaged with the enemy. The fight seems to be concentrated around McPherson's woods, about a mile and a half from this town. The firing is becoming heavy and is continuous. Many wounded are coming into town. Our citizens are greatly excited and many are hiding their valuables and leaving the town.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 1, NOON.

The first corps has all passed here, crossing the fields by the Cordorar farm and hurrying to the front. It is rumored that other corps of the army of the Potomac are near at hand.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 1, 12.30.

Gen. Howard has passed through the town and gone to the front. The Eleventh corps is now coming up. It is difficult to get reliable news from the front, but it is believed that our troops are holding their own. Gen. Doubleday has been in command since Reynolds fell.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 1, NOON.

The rebel Gen. Archer and fifteen hundred of his men have just passed through town. They were taken prisoners by the Iron Brigade. Gen. Meredith is among the wounded.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 1, 1 O'CLOCK

The firing is very heavy now and seems to be coming nearer to the town. Streams of the wounded are pouring into town by the Chambersburg road, and the fields are covered with them. Shells can be seen bursting in the vicinity of the Lutheran Seminary and the whole air seems alive with exploding missiles.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 1, 2 O'CLOCK.

The Eleventh corps, under command of Gen. Carl Schurz, is now engaged with the enemy. The firing is extending all around to the right of the town. Our citizens are terrified and know not where to fly. Many of the wounded are dying in the streets. The medical corps are getting hospitals improved as quickly as possible.

It is reported that Gen. Roy Stone's brigade is almost annihilated.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 1, 3 P. M.

It is rumored that Hall's Battery has been captured by the enemy. Two Mississippi regiments have been captured by Cutler's brigade and have passed through town to the rear.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 1, 3.30 P. M.

Hall's battery has been retaken by our troops. Part of the Eleventh corps, under Gen. Steinwehr, is now fortifying Cemetery Hill. Streams of wounded are still pouring into town. It is said that many prominent officers have fallen.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 1, 4 P. M.

The firing in the vicinity of Benner's Hill is becoming heavy. Many fugitives are coming into town. Our army is believed to be falling back and the fighting is getting nearer. There is intense excitement among our citizens.

GETTYSBURG, 1, 4.30 P. M.

It is feared the First and Eleventh corps have been defeated. They are now hurrying through the town, artillery and infantry in wild confusion. Our citizens are terror-stricken.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 1, 5.30 P. M.

The town of Gettysburg is now in the hands of the enemy, and I send this dispatch by messenger to two taverns. Our troops are forming on Cemetery Hill.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 1, 5.30.

Gen. Hancock arrived upon the field an hour ago. He relieved Gen. Howard and seems to have restored confidence in our troops. He is busy forming a new line of battle and it is believed that we can hold our new position.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 1, 6 P. M.

The rebels have full possession of the town. The firing has almost stopped and we can see their pickets on the streets at the foot of Cemetery Hill. Gen. Hancock has sent a brigade to take possession of Culp's Hill.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 1, 8 P. M.

Gen. Hancock has gone back to Taneytown to report to Gen. Meade, and Slocum is now in command. The Twelfth corps is now coming up and it is believed that our position is now safe.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 1, 10 P. M.

I have just learned that the losses of the First and Eleventh corps have been awful. It is now understood that all of Hill's and Ewell's corps of Lee's army were on the field and outnumbered our men two to one. Our troops did splendid fighting but were overpowered from the beginning. The principal fighting took place at McPherson's woods and later around the Lutheran Seminary. Our losses during the day were terrible, the First corps losing nearly every field officer. The heroic Gen. John F. Reynolds was one of the first to fall. He was killed as he was hurrying the Iron Brigade into action. Gen. Barlow, of the Eleventh corps, was shot down and captured by the enemy. Gen. Paul had both eyes shot out. Col. Huiedekoper has lost his right arm. Gen. Roy Stone's brigade, all Pennsylvanians, made a noble fight, and lost very severely. Gen. Stone and Col. Wister, 150th Pennsylvania Volunteers being among the wounded. Col. Dana is now in command of the brigade. The battle seems to be over for the day, but it is difficult to get reliable information as to our losses.

GETTYSBURG, JULY 2, 1 O'CLOCK A. M.

Gen. Meade has just arrived. The Second, Third and Fifth corps are now coming up. All feel that a great battle will be fought here in the morning.

Honest Medicines Versus Fakes.

President Taft's message suggesting an amendment to the Pure Food and Drugs law in its relation to Prepared Medicines, does not refer to such standard medicines as Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and Foley Kidney Pills, both of which are true medicines carefully compounded of ingredients whose medicinal qualities are recognized by the medical profession itself as the best known remedial agents for the diseases they intended to counteract. For over three decades Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has been a standard remedy for coughs, colds and affections of the throat, chest and lungs for children and for grown persons, and it retains today its pre-eminence above all other preparations of its kind. Foley Kidney Pills are equally effective and meritorious. Sold by C. M. Parrish.

An Ordinance.

Providing for the macadamizing and improvement of East Bishop Street, and the collection of two-thirds of the cost thereof from the owners of real estate bounding or abutting thereon,

BE IT ENACTED by the Town Council of the Borough of Bellefonte, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same:

SECTION 1. That the portion of Bishop Street, known as East Bishop Street, from its intersection with Allegheny Street to the eastern line of the Borough, be and the same is hereby directed to be paved or improved with asphaltic-macadam, in accordance with the plans and specifications of the Highway Department of this Commonwealth, to a width of twenty four feet.

SECTION 2. That two-thirds of the cost and expense of the same shall be collected from the owners of the real estate bounding or abutting thereon, by an equal assessment on the feet front bounding or abutting as aforesaid, which said assessment shall be eighteen cents per front foot.

SECTION 3. That said assessment shall be estimated and compiled by the Borough Engineer, and that the list of such assessments so made shall be the basis for the collection of said charges from the owners of real estate bounding or abutting upon said East Bishop Street, and a copy thereof, certified under the hand and seal of said Borough Engineer, shall be filed with the Secretary of Council for the inspection of all persons interested.

The above ordinance was presented and read at a regular meeting of the Town Council of the Borough of Bellefonte, held on the 19th of June, 1911, and, on motion, was directed to be advertised according to law.

W. T. KELLY,
Secretary of Town Council.

HOME CANNING.

True Domestic Economy Will Yet Affect the Cost of Living.

One of the most significant developments of the last few years in the South has been the increased attention given to home canning. Where formerly there was an enormous waste through vegetables rotting on the farmers' hands, there are saved now great quantities of food through canning. An outfit can be purchased at a very low cost. A small cannery can be bought for $3.50, and one of a fairly large capacity, complete in every way, for $17.50. More extensive plants are offered at $100. Empty cans and labels are offered at comparatively low prices. Indeed, a number of factories devoted entirely to supplying canning materials to the farmer have been established in the South of late.

It is found that the market for goods canned at home is good and the prices generally higher than those given for ordinary canned goods. Grocery stores are glad to get canned products which they know are good. But quite aside from the market, the development is highly significant, for it enables farmers to put by from the abundance of the summer a plentiful supply of food to carry them all winter. On many farms now the house garden is larger than ever, the object being to produce enough to last the full year. This materially cuts down the cost of living and makes the farmer almost entirely independent of any source of supply except his own lands.

The system is not yet so general as it should be, but it has made great strides in the last three years and is progressing more rapidly each season. It is altogether reasonable to suppose that within a few years over 50 per cent of the farmers of this state will produce practically all of their own canned goods. One has only to glance over advertisements in agricultural papers to see just how extensive home canning is. It offers another reason for diversified farming. If we must ship our chief raw material, at least we can manufacture our own food products. It means additional prosperity—Charleston News and Courier.

DOGWOOD BLOSSOMS

How Home Looks to a Farm-Bred Man When He is Away Fram Home.

He woke, on the hard bed of a cheap boarding house, and lay blinking toward the light that filtered into the room from a small court, above which could be seen the proverbial "little tent of blue."

He had come from places where life is generous with its space. The pavements still hurt his feet, Within his breast the city had planted its pull. He had tasted its ways, and he liked them. But today was a day in spring. He looked out upon whitewashed brick, in front of which flapped the weekly wash. He lay still and blinked his eyes. Then he said:

"I reckon the dogwood blossoms are mighty pretty to-day down home."

Had he but known it, the regret of his mental vision was cured by the memory itself. We have all more or less sentimentally deprecated the movement from the farm to the city. Still more sentimentally, the city man has yearned for the farm. It is comforting to think that both movements are right, the stirring ambition that makes the boy of the fields the sophisticated man who "knows the town," and the self-surrender of the man sated with excitement, with money, end even with opprotunity, who is able to keep before his eyes and his ears the virginal beauty, the gentle murmur of the reviving year.

In the larger sense there is no problem of city or country, save as it has to do with the spiritual blindness which makes of either a desert of the heart. All along the wooded glades the dogwood bourgeoned forth this spring. In the country the hopeless man is he who set about to break his land oblivious of its charm, in the city, the pathetic figure is he who was not moved with its desire.

But who can cast off circumstance and hold a beauty in his soul is close to the universal secret.

"I reckon the dogwood blossoms are mighty pretty to-day, down home!"

Ah, friend, for you the passionate glory of a day need never fade, if only you continued to reckon thus.—Richmond Virginian.

A Little Care Will Save Mauy Bellefonte Readess Future Trouble.

Watch the kidney secretions.

See that they have the amber hue of health;

The discharges not excessive or infrequent;

Contain no "brick-dust like" sediment.

Doan's Kidney Pills will do this for you.

They watch the kidneys and cure them when they're sick.

Hiram Fetterhoff 28 W. Bishop St., Bellefonte, Pa., says: "I have no hesitation in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills, knowing them to be a first-class remedy. For some time I was annoyed by irregular passages of the kidney secretions and reading that Doan's Kidney Pills were a specific for kidney complaint, I procured a supply at Green's Pharmacy Co. Their use relieved me and I am now in better health. Doan's Kidney Pills are certainly an effective Kidney medicine. (Statement given October 21, 1907).

No cause for complaint. When Mr. Fetterhoff was interviewed on November 22, 1909 he said: "I willingly confirm my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. The relief they brought me has been permanent."

Bread From Standing Wheat.

What is thought to be the world's time record in harvesting, threshing, milling and baking into biscuits was made with wheat from the W. S. Geble farm, in an Iowa town.

The time consumed in doing this was exactly thirty minutes. At 3.14 the team started into the field with the header, and one minute later the harvested wheat was at the threshing machine.

At 3.23 Mr. Gable drove his touring car up to the mill door, and at 3.29 flour had been made from the wheat by the regular process employed by a milling company here.

At 3.30 the flour was delivered at a bakery, and the baker made biscuits that were taken from the oven at 3.44, just thirty minutes from the time the header went into the wheat field.

Kidney Diseases are Curable.

Under certain conditions. The right medicine must be taken before the disease has progressed too far. Mr. Perry A. Pitman, Dale, Tex., says: "I was down in bed for four months with kidney and bladder trouble and gall stones. One bottle of Foley's Kidney Remedy cured me well and sound." Ask for it. Sold by C. M. Parrish.

The Injured Finger.

Every one knows that disfiguration and sometimes suppuration oft times follow the bruising of the fingers. Worse still, at times the injury results in an unsightly finger nail, until the blackening disappears.

Now, the next time you squeeze your fingers in the door or hit them when you aimtfor the head of a tack, seat yourself on a chair in front of a stationary washstand and hold your hand under the cold water faucet in as nearly an upright position as is possible, and let the cold water run on the injured members for nearly an hour. If the water gets too cold turn it off for a few minutes, but be sure and keep the hand in the upright position, so that the blood will not run too freely into the bruised portions of the finger and discolor it.

Cold water is nature's own antiseptic. While away camping with a physician and his family, where there were many campers in a lovely spot miles away from a drug store, the doctor demonstrated the healing virtues of water in many ways. One day a member of the camp had the misfortune to get his hand poisoned by having it cut with the fins of a certain fish. When he came to the doctor for aid his arm was greatly swollen and darkly purple, even above the elbow. The physician washed the wound with small sponges of absorbent cotton saturated with cold spring water, and he also made him keep compresses made of absorbent cotton and cold water over the wound, changing them as soon as they became warm for fresh ones. It was one of the quickest and most satisfactory cures I ever witnessed.

Liquid Cures Eczema Where Salves Fail.

In regard to skin diseases, medical authorities are now agreed on this:

Don't imprison the disease germs in your skin by the use of greasy salves, and thus encourage them to multiply. A true cure of all eczematous diseases can be brought about only by using the healing agents in the form of a liquid.

WASH THE GERMES OUT.

A simple wash: A compound of Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol, and other ingredients as combined in the D. D. D. Prescription. This penetrates to the disease germs and destroys them, then soothes and heals the skin as nothing else has ever done.

Danderine

EVERYBODY CAN HAVE BEAUTIFUL HAIR NOW, and they don't have to wait weeks and months for results either. You will notice marked improvement after the very first application.

Danderine is quickly and thoroughly absorbed by the scalp and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities. It is pleasant and easy to use—simply apply it to the scalp and hair once a day until the hair begins to grow, then two or three times a week till desired results are obtained.

Grows Hair and we can PROVE IT!

A lady from California writes in substance as follows:
I have been using your wonderful hair tonic for several months and at last I am now blessed with a wonderful suit of hair that measures over 48 inches in length; the braid is over 8 inches around.

Another from New Jersey:
After using sixth bottle I am happy to say that I have as nice a head of hair as anyone in New Jersey.

This Great Hair-Growing Remedy can now be had at all druggists in three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

TOOTHPICK WARRIORS.

When thieves fall out honest men not only get their dues but the people are afforded an opportunity to sit back and learn how the principals are actually estimated in the house of their friends.

As a hot-weather diversion the editor of the "Centre Democrat" and the editor of the "Democratic Watchman" are at present engaged in the hopeless task of trying to determine which one is a true Democrat and an honest man. Each should have undertaken something more closely approaching a sane argument. When harping on this particular subject they are merely chasing each other around a circle.

However, while they are at it, let the fur fly and, what is more to the point, let the truth, and the whole truth, come out. The "Centre Democrat" brands the editor of the "Democratic Watchman" as being of the same stripe as Guffey, Hall, Donnelly and Dewalt, and then styles the whole outfit a band of political crooks, tricksters, political cut-throats and highwaymen. This candid expression of opinion on the part of the "Centre Democrat" was greatly relished by those who were of the same belief but were too polite to say so.

Being somewhat galled by the making public of so much truth, all in one dose, the "Democratic Watchman" rubbed the dust off its spectacles and without any apparent effort to refresh its memory, painted what it labeled to be an honest and truthful picture of the editor of the "Centre Democrat," taken from life, as it were. Far be it from "The Republican" to vouch for the descriptions of the editor of the "Centre Democrat" as furnished by the editor of the "Democratic Watchman." We assume that the "Democratic Watchman" knows whereof it speaks, having been closely allied with the "Centre Democrat", lo these many years, in buncoing the dear public. From this intimate relationship and association with the "Centre Democrat", the "Democratic Watchman" says its companion in political hypocrisy is a rank fake. To be more specific, the "Democratic Watchman" gives the following as just a few of the things of which the editor of the "Centre Democrat" is unblushingly guilty:

"Egotism,"
"Jealousy,"
"Pure asininity,"
"Serious solicitude of a political pigmy",
"Snarl of a YELLOW DOG."

Possibly the foregoing would be rejected as bordering too closely on to pink tea language were the editor of the "Centre Democrat" to unbosom himself to the extent of an unexpurgated opinion of the "Democratic Watchman." Possibly the editor of the "Centre Democrat" lacks the courage to unmask the "Democratic Watchman." Most persons think so, anyhow, including the editor of the "Democratic Watchman."

As we have said, the Democratic family snarl is no affair of ours and we have no opinion to offer unless it be to remark that the "Centre Democrat" and the "Democratic Watchman" in expressing their views, each of the other, have thus far merely scratched the surface. Once they get up their nerve and start in telling cold-blooded truth, based on what each knows about the other, it will be worth while listening to. Up to this point, at least, it smacks very much of being a toothpick duel.

Killed Two Rattlers.

On Tuesday David Chambers, Mr. and Mrs. James Uzzle and children and Mrs. Jenkin David and Miss Vivian David, of Snow Shoe, were traveling to Bellefonte in the Chambers automobile when they encountered two goodly-sized rattle snakes lying directly in the road, between Joseph Reese's home and the top of the mountain. Mr. Chambers and Mr. Uzzle got out of the car and quickly killed both rattlers. One was four feet long and had nine rattles. The other was somewhat over three feet long and had six rattles. While at "The Republican" office Mr. Chambers said that in all sections snakes are more plentiful this year than ever before. The two rattlers which they killed along the road were brought to Bellefonte and later figured in a joke on Sim Baum. Mr. Uzzle had the snakes wrapped in a newspaper and carrying them into Sim's store explained that Mr. Chambers had sent a present. Sim thought it was some choice tid-bit from Snow Shoe and was quite elated. He took the package to the rear of the store and there opened it. Instead of some fine trout he found the two dead snakes. Sim almost collapsed but recovered in time to tell Mr. Uzzle that he wanted no more "presents" from over the mountain.

DIED AT PINE GROVE

John G. Heberling, Brave Old Soldier, Passed Away on Sunday.

Another brave old soldier answered the last roll call when on Sunday night, last, John G. Heberling passed away at his late home at Pine Grove Mills. He had been in failing health for the last year or more, his death being due to heart failure and other ailments. For the last few months of his life he was very feeble, at times being so weak that it was believed the end would come at any moment. Nevertheless he lingered until Sunday night, at 11.45 o'clock.

Deceased was a son of Joseph and Elizabeth Pyle Heberling, pioneer settlers of the Gatesburg valley, where J. G. was born May 5, 1839. His boyhood days were spent on the farm and when the dark clouds of war arose he enlisted in Company E, 45th Penna. Vols, serving four years. At the battle of Palmer's farm he was severely wounded and left on the field for several days. He had a terrible experience, being subjected to exposure and forced to go without food or medical attention. He was captured by the enemy and removed to Libby prison, where he was cared for and in due time exchanged.

On Thanksgiving Day, 1867, he married Miss Sadie Dunlap, of Pine Grove Mills, and to their union three children were born: J. Benton, of State College; Professor M. E., of Pine Grove Mills, and Miss E. May, at home. The three children and a widow survive and mourn the death of a kind and loving father and a devoted, loyal husband. The following brothers and sisters also survive: Joseph H., of Penna. Furnace; Thomas and Samuel, of Tyrone; James, of Eagleville; Mrs. Miles Harpster, of Penna. Furnace, and Mrs. Perry Gates and Miss Emma, of WarriorsMark. Mr. Heberling's occupation was that of a cabinet maker and undertaker and he remained in active business until about eighteen years ago, when his health failed and he was succeeded by his son, Benton. He served as postmaster for three terms and was a most efficient and obliging official.

For forty years Mr. Heberling was an Odd Fellow, a member of Penns valley Lodge, No. 276, and for twenty-five years he served as its treasurer. He also was a charter member of Captain Campbell Post, No. 272, G. A. R., and was its quartermaster. Early in life he became a member of the Lutheran church and filled the offices of elder and trustee.

Funeral services were held from his late residence on Main Street on Wednesday morning, at 10 o'clock, and were largely attended. The G. A. R. Post and the several lodges of which he was a member turned out in a body as a mark of respect to his memory. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. The services were conducted by his pastor, Rev. Mr. Shultz, assisted by four other ministers. Rev. C. T. Aikens, of Selinsgrove, and Rev. Ralph Bergstresser, of Altoona, paid beautiful tributes to his worth as a citizen and a man. Burial was made in the new cemetery. The family extend their thanks to friends and neighbors for their kindly assistance in the sad hour of bereavement.

Young Man's Death.

George H. Bowes, a son of the late Joseph Bowes, died at his late home, at Beech Creek, on Monday evening, last, after an illness of four weeks. Death was due to typhoid fever and was the second in the household in the last year. Deceased was a member of Blanchard Lodge, No. 427, I. O. O. F., and also of Beech Creek tent, Improved Order of Red Men. He was 28 years of age. Surviving are a widowed mother and the followed brothers and sisters: John, of Beech Creek township; William, at home; Mrs. Derr, Ridgway; Mrs. John Hanley, Mrs. Henry Potter, Mrs. Elmer Young, all of Beech Creek township; Mrs. Harry Philips, Drurys Run, and Mrs. William Gill, of Julian.

Died in Ohio.

George Nevel, a young man, aged about 25 years, died at Huron, Ohio, on Monday July 10, from the effects of typhoid fever. Deceased was the son of Jacob E. Nevel, who died some years ago. He leaves a mother, one sister and four brothers to mourn his death. He had been engaged in working for the Chicago Bridge and Iron Structural Works during the past year. Burial will be made today at Colyer. The community has lost a fine young man and one whose memory will ever be cherished.

George W. Garbrick Dead.

George W. Garbrick died on Sunday, July 2, at the home of his son, Amos, near Fostoria, from diseases incident to old age. Deceased was born in York but for many years he made his home in the vicinity of Tyrone. Surviving are the following children: Mrs. Sarah Bloom, of State College; Mrs. Henrietta Mowery, of Tyrone; Mrs. Ellen Porter, of Centre Hall; Mrs. Clara Roles, of Fostoria; James and John, of Philadelphia, and Amos, at home.

DIGS THROUGH WALL.

wall well hollowed out and at some points the exterior of the wall was punctured sufficiently to let the sunlight through.

With the job all but finished daylight forced Palmer to quit work and return to his cell. It was a trace of mortar that first caught the eye of Sheriff Hurley as he entered the cell room on Saturday morning of last week. This was enough, however, to excite his suspicion and Sheriff Hurley lost no time in making a thorough investigation. He soon found the pile of stone and mortar in the dungeon and the large hole in the wall in the cell adjoining. It required but a few minutes for him to follow the clue, which led to Palmer's cell.

"Well, Joe, I see you have been pretty busy," remarked Sheriff Hurley as he faced Palmer in the latter's cell. Palmer, realizing instantly that the jig was up, replied:

"Yes, another night would have done it."

"Well, we'll let you bite steel for a while," bluntly remarked Sheriff Hurley, as he took Palmer and marched him into the cell a short time ago occupied by Delige, the negro murderer.

It is hoped by Sheriff Hurley that more will be known of Palmer and his record by the time he is brought to trial. It is expected that Palmer will get not only a sentence for larceny but that a pretty stiff dose will be added for his attempt to break jail.

HIGHEST SINCE 1886

Temperature Last Week Scored Record for Quarter of Century.

Everybody knew that the weather last week was intensely hot, but few persons were aware that the mercury was scoring the highest notch since 1886. The top notch was on the Fourth of July, when the mercury soared to 99.25.

Since 1886 the Experiment Station at State College has maintained a weather observatory and Dr. William Frear, weather observer, has prepared a table showing the record from that year down to the present time. The nearest approach to the extreme heat of the Fourth of July of this year was on July 16, 1887, when the mercury reached 97. In 1899 and 1900 it touched 96. The figures prepared by Dr. Frear are especially interesting and are as follows:

1886	Aug. 28,	91
1887	July 16,	97
1888	June 21,	95
1889	May 10,	92
1890	July 8,	94
1891	Aug. 11,	92
1892	July 26,	95
1893	Aug. 11,	92
1894	July 19,	96
1895	June 4,	94
1896	Aug. 9,	93
1897	July 10,	92
1898	July 3,	95
1899	Aug. 20,	96
1900	July 17,	96
1901	July 1,	94
1902	July 17,	89
1903	July 3 & 10,	89
1904	July 18,	89
1905	June 17,	87
1906	June 9 & 30	90

Sunday Evening Wedding.

On Sunday evening, last, after the close of the church services, a ceremony took place at the Bellefonte Reformed parsonage by which John A. Shuey and Miss Grace V. Hoy were made husband and wife. The groom is a son of Daniel Shuey, of Axe Mann, and the bride is a daughter of Jacob F. Hoy, of Rock View. The happy young couple were attended by Lester Shuey and Miss Pearl Hoy. The father of the bride also was present. The young couple are well known in our community and have the hearty and good wishes of all their friends. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. A. M. Schmidt.

Saw Four Fine Deer.

Four fine deer were seen in a corn field on the Aaron Woodring farm, near Port Matilda, on the morning of the Forth of July. Mr. Woodring's son, Estes, happened to be passing nearby the field at the time. He thought the deer were cattle that had broken into the corn field. All four deer were of a deep reddish-brown color.

FOOLED PICNIC CROWD.

but when called on to prove this by making the flights for which he had contracted he weakly admitted that he couldn't.

In behalf of the Bellefonte Lodge of Moose the management of "The Republican" desires to state that from personal knowledge of the facts we know the foregoing statement is to be correct. The picnic committee acted in the best of faith. The committee sincerely desired to give the people of this section their first aeroplane flights. Before contracting with Bauman the committee communicated with the Wright Aeroplane Company, of Dayton, Ohio, and also with a firm in Bath, New York. The latter firm's machines were all engaged for the Fourth of July. The Wright Aeroplane Company telegraphed that the least it would accept for one day was $2500. The committee then got into touch with Bauman. He first wanted $500, but later came to Bellefonte and after meeting the committee agreed to enter into a contract as outlined above. As further evidence of its good faith the committee paid for the transportation of Bauman's aeroplane from Mill Hall to Hecla Park and return. Having full confidence in the young man's claims and believing up to the last minute that he would "make good," the committee provided the necessary ropes and stakes to rope off the run-way provided on all such occasions. As it turned out, the committee failed to provide the one thing most needed by young Bauman—a large dose of nerve.

"The Republican" announces that the Bellefonte Lodge of Moose, still desirous of giving the people of Centre County an aeroplane flight, stands ready to contribute $100 to any reputable organization in Bellefonte toward defraying the expense of securing a genuine exhibition by some reputable firm.

Even though the proposed aeroplane flights were a dismal failure, everything else connected with the picnic was a pleasing success. The order was possibly the best witnessed on the grounds. No arrests were necessrry and everybody had a good time. The Lock Haven "Express" and also the "Democrat," in their reports of the picnic, praised the picnic management for the splendid order maintained throughout the day.

The day's athletic events included two baseball games. In the morning Lock Haven defeated Jersey Shore, 12-8. In the afternoon Bellefonte defeated Lock Haven 12-1. Both visiting teams were made up of fine, gentlemanly fellows, and put up the best game they possibly could on such a hot day.

An interesting feature was the announcing of the result in the "Queen's Contest," in which a number of hustling young ladies contested for valuable prizes. Miss Florence Hamilton, of Bellefonte, came in "with bells on," so to speak, easily winning first prize, a valuable and handsome gold watch. She got the lead early in the contest and never was headed by the other contestants. To make sure that she retained her decisive lead she remained on the grounds until the last vote had been polled and counted. Miss Elizabeth Eckenroth won second honors, capturing a prize in the shape of a handsome bracelet.

Hecla Man Weds.

On Thursday, June 29, a pretty wedding was solemnized at Point Lookout, near Philipsburg, when Miss Nelle N. Rittenhouse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rittenhouse, became the bride of H. L. Hockman, of Hecla Park. The bride is a splendid young lady and has a host of friends who wish her much happiness. The groom is a popular and industrious young man who is meeting with gratifying success in the business world. He is at present a district manager for the Citizens Supply Company, of Columbus, Ohio, with headquarters at Williamsport.

Karthaus Minister Weds.

Rev. W. B. Cook, Jr., of Karthaus, and Miss Kittie Kelsey, of Flemington, were married on Wednesday of last week, the ceremony being performed by Rev. W. B. Cook, Sr., the groom's father, who is pastor of the Fishing Creek Methodist Episcopal church. The groom is a graduate of the Dickinson Seminary, at Williamsport. For a time he resided near Flemington.

Milesburg Couple Married.

On Monday evening, July 3, a quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized in the parsonage of the United Evangelical church when Miss Anna Johnson and Galer Willis Rightnour were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. The bride and groom are from Milesburg. Their numerous friends wish them happiness and success in their married life.

Young Couple Wed.

On Thursday evening, June 29, at 7.30 o'clock, in the presence of a few invited friends, Miss Sarah L. Bayletts and Samuel I. Shank, both of Bellefonte, were married by Rev. J. F. Hower, pastor of the United Evangelical church. The friends of the young couple wish them much happiness.

Social at Boalsburg.

The ladies of the Reformed church will hold a social at Boalsburg on Saturday evening, July 15. Proceeds for the benefit of the church, of which Rev. S. C. Stover is pastor.

Installation at Sandy Ridge.

A public installation of the officers of Washington Camp, No. 466, P. O. S. of A., of Sandy Ridge, was held at that place on Saturday evening, July 8. The ceremony was very beautiful and impressive and was performed by District Deputy Edward Vaughn, of Sandy Ridge. Rev. J. F. Cobb, of Camp No. 76, Elmer, N. J., pastor of the Blandburg, Pa., Methodist Episcopal church, delivered an excellent address. Mr. Cobb is a very enthusiastic member of the P. O. S. of A., and his address was most inspiring and instructive. All who heard him were entertained and edified in the workings of the order. Rev. R. M. Hamilton, pastor of the United Brethren church, in which edifice the services were held, also delivered an address which was well received. At the conclusion of the interesting services the several members and their wives and friends repaired to the P. O. S. of A. hall, where the committee had prepared delicious refreshments.

Howard

Harry Wetzel, a young man with considerable mechanical skill, is home for a short visit.

Mrs. M. L. Beck is seriously ill from cancer. Little hope is entertained for her recovery.

Roy Decker, one of our bright young men, is attending the teachers training school at Muncy.

O. N. Allison, our butcher who keeps the people so well supplied with rich, juicy meat, is seriously ill.

Mrs. Anna Harvey and her niece, Miss Rebecca Lucas, have been visiting Altoona friends the past week.

Miss Ella Hall, assistant postmistress, spent a few days visiting friends at Flemington and Lock Haven.

Just Vonada and John Shafer, of Jacksonville, are supplying some of our citizens with a nice quality of hay.

Edward Henderson and wife, owner of Howard's hotel, have been visiting friends and relatives for a week.

Edward Green and wife are the owners of a handsome driver and take frequent trips to Clintondale and Lamar.

A quintette of young men with excellent voices have lately been favoring our citizens with some splendid music.

Dr. W. J. Kurtz very silently slipped off to the big convention of Shriners, at Rochester. His genial wife accompanied him.

Jerry Bland and Harry Butler are delivering into the bins of many of our citizens a fresh supply of hard coal—a hot job.

John Holter and wife are visiting the former's home here. Mr. Holter holds a fine position with the paper mill at Johnsonburg.

Reuben Lucas and his good wife recently spent an evening with Mrs. W. H. Long. The two families are warm personal friends.

Marius Miner and wife are visiting their daughter at Rochester, N. Y., this week, and also looking on at the Shriners' convention.

The ladies of the Christian church represent that type who make life a success. These days they are busy quilting in a separate room of the church.

Cyrus Tice, a successful traveling salesman, is not going to let the wife and children endure the hardship from cold weather this coming winter. He is starting early and installing a modern heating plant.

Hugh Delong, of Howard, has been visiting his son, in Seattle, Wash., who has been on the Pacific coast for more than a year. His daughter, Carrie, now Mrs. Wilson, of Warriors-Mark, recently visited with him.

Merv Betz and J. Condo, of Jacksonville, drove through our town with a rapid trotter a few days ago. Merv is a progressive merchant and Mr. Condo is the owner of a modern and complete threshing machine outfit, which enables him to accommodate the farmers.

Claire Leathers, one of our hustling young men, has been having a delightful visit at Brookville since last May. He has purchased a handsome driver, which is Claire's delight and which, no doubt, will be a pleasure to some of Howard's pretty maidens on some evening spins.

Blanchard.

Misses Ellen and Mary Johnston, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnston, are being warmly congratulated on the splendid examination taken by them recently and as a result of which they have been awarded permanent teachers' certificates.

The ladies of the Baptist church will hold an ice cream festival on the church lawn on Saturday evening, July 22. Proceeds for the benefit of the church. A cordial invitation is extended the public to come and help a worthy cause.

The Baptist Sabbath school of Eagleville will hold a basket picnic in Eaton's grove on Saturday, August 5. The different schools of the community and the citizens in general are cordially invited to bring their baskets and enjoy a day in the woods. A festival will be held in the evening on the lawn of the Baptist church.

At a meeting of the Liberty township school directors the following were elected teachers: Blanchard—Shuman Williams, principal and teacher of the High School; Miss McNerney, of Lock Haven, grammar school; Miss Ellen Johnston, intermediate grade; Miss Olive Gardner, primary grade. Mountain (Eagleville)—Miss Wilt, of Mill Hall; Clark—Miss Beulah Holter; Hunter Run—W. Scott Holter; Monument—Charles Bolapue. Teachers for Polecat and Fairview will be elected at a meeting to be held in the near future.

For a fine cigar call at Green's.

Miss Vida Corl is ill from bowel trouble.

G. W. McWilliams, for the past week, has been numbered among the sick.

The flouring mill at Strubles is being repaired and its equipment added to.

G. B. Campbell is housed up, suffering from an attack of inflammatory rheumatism.

Rev. C. T. Aikens greeted old friends here last week. He is always a welcome visitor.

William Royer, of White Hall, transacted business at the County Seat on Saturday.

The glorious Fourth was celebrated only in a quiet way by the small boy and his tin horn.

Henry Norris and daughter, Mable, spent Wednesday at the W. A. Collins home, on Main Street.

Wilson Ghaner spent the Fourth at Philipsburg and had one eye on the tall timbers all along the way.

C. M. Dale is re-roofing his barn with galvanized iron. J. L. Burwell has the the job and is doing it right, too.

Mrs. R. M. Illingsworth and children are at Grandpa Snyder's trying to keep cool. Mr. Illingsworth is expected later on.

Earl Smith came down from Altoona to join his little family and enjoy a quiet Fourth at Grandpa Port's, on Main Street.

Mrs. William Keller and sons arrived here last Saturday evening from Pittsburg and will spend two weeks with friends in town.

At a congregational meeting held in the Presbyterian church last Saturday morning, at 10 o'clock, George Reed and Daniel Barr were elected elders.

Farmer Frank Krumrine had one of his best horses die on Friday while hitched to the binder. The horse dropped dead in its tracks, due to sun-stroke.

Mrs. Pyscher is repairing her barn, on the Branch, and also having a nice galvanized roof put on. Harry Harrah has the contract. Harry always does good work.

J. A. Decker will conduct a boarding house at the grangers picnic, at Centre Hall, this year. This means that visitors will be sure to get the very best of things to eat.

Mack Henderson, one of the legal lights at Huntingdon, with a party of friends on Friday enjoyed a spin in his Ford machine and spent the day at the N. C. Neidigh home, at White Hall.

The stork was busy during the past few days, leaving a little daughter at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Musser, a chubby little boy at the Harry Sunday home and an eleven-pound boy at the E. T. Kellerman home.

Rev. J. O. C. McCracken and family came over from Johnstown for their mid-summer outing at the McCracken family home, in the Glades. The Reverend is making a full hand haying, etc., and is ready for three square meals a day.

James D. Hess, of Williamsport, Adam Bucher, James Stover and wife and Rev. Ralph Bergstresser, of Altoona; D. B. Allen, of Milesburg; J. R. Pheasant, of Mt. Eagle; Squire Musser and W. H. Poorman, of Bellefonte, attended the J. G. Heberling funeral on July 5.

Rev. W. C. Dunlap and family spent several days among their friends in town last week, before leaving for their new field of labor. Mr. Dunlap will have charge of a large congregation in Allegheny. For the last eleven years he was pastor of Lutheran church at Martinsville, recently resigning that charge. He is a fluent talker and an active worker in his Master's vineyard.

With the mercury gliding about the 105 mark many have succumbed to the intense heat, including N. O. Dreibelbis, J. S. Miller, Hamill Glenn, Reed Randolph, W. E. Reed and O. M. Sheets. The last named suffered sunstroke while building a load of hay and tumbled to the ground. For a time he was unconscious and has been fast in bed ever since. At present he is somewhat better.

Farmer Elmer Louden last week purchased from C. M. Gramley a new Reo car (Just what happened next our readers must guess at it, for the correspondent wrote it in Dutch and it was too much for us.) Nevertheless, it required several big men and a legion of boys to push the machine up the hill at midnight, Saturday, and it came near to backing into the Oak Halldam, only being checked in the nick of time.

G. W. Ward came over from the Iron City on the 1st so as to be here ahead of scheduled time to arrange for the Ward family gathering on the Fourth. The event took place in the gap, under the shady branches of the tall elms, where the ladies spread the good things to eat, which included the choicest the market could afford. Both dinner and supper were served, so that it was twilight when they broke camp and departed for home with happy thoughts of returning next year.

Jacob W. Sunday has been laid up for several days as a victim of the extreme heat. He attended the funeral of his sister, Mrs. N. N. Smith, who died at Lewistown on Sunday, July 2, from diseases incident to old age. She had been in ill health for several years. Mrs. Smith was a good, Christian lady and was an active and consistent member of the Lutheran church. Her husband and four sons and two daughters survive. Burial was made on Wednesday at 2 o,clock, P. M., at the Lutheran cemetery.

Dr. and Mrs. Kidder were called to the bedside of Mrs. Kidder's father, Silas Gibbony, who had been ill some months and who died on Sunday morning at 4 o'clock at the home of his son, Oliver, at Saulsburg. He was a member, of the Presbyterian church. Burial was made on Tuesday at 2 o'clock, P. M., at Manor Hill. Mr. Gibbony was one of the successful farmers in that section and his home was an ideal place to visit. During the last few years he made frequent visits to Penns valley and made many friends who will learn with sincere regret of his death.

Unionville.

Charles and John Rhown were visitors here over the Fourth.

H. D. Lindemuth and H. G. Musser motored to Tyrone on the Fourth.

Mr. and Mrs. Snook, of Clearfield, are visiting at the William Turner home.

John P. Brugger, of Johnstown, is spending his vacation on his farm here.

J. B. Stere, Harry Kerchner and B. F. Peters celebrated the Fourth in Tyrone.

The M. E. church has been greatly improved by the application of two coats of paint.

Will Bitner and family recently picked cherries at the Gettig home over in the valley.

Thad Yearick recently loaded a car of mine ties for shipment to one of his best customers.

Mrs. Frank Deitz one day last week fell from a cherry tree and sustained some very painful bruises.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayes Leathers and children, from Tennessee, are visiting the former's mother.

Mrs. John Barger and children, of Curtin, spent a day recently with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Bitner.

John Bathurst, who has been employed in the handle factory, is now working in the clay mines at Hayes Run.

Your scribe attended the J. G. Heberling funeral at Pine Grove Mills. We were comrades together in the service.

Mrs. Minnie Barger, of Howard, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Ward Daughenbaugh, who has been ill for sometime past.

Miss Nan Braumbaugh, of Altoona, accompanied by her best fellow, spent a few days at the home of her grandfather, J. R. Pheasant.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Rowan, Miss Florence Rowan and Miss Golden, of Philadelphia, arrived here on Saturday afternoon in their automobile. They remained until Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bartruff, whose wedding occurred a few weeks ago at Ardmore, and who make their home at Duncannon, are visiting at the Leathers home. Mrs. Bartruff was formerly Miss Cora Leathers.

The Howard township school board met on July 1 and elected the following teachers: Kennedy—Miss Anna Deitz; Sand Hill—Miss Ethel Bitner; Gravel Point—Miss Maude Harshberger; Fairview—Winfield Thompson; Furnace—Howard Robb; Pletcher—Miss Pearl Gates; Mt. Eagle—Mr. Pletcher, a son of Christ Pletcher.

Yarnell.

William Kissling returned to his home at McKeesport on Monday.

Miss Marcella Boyer is spending a few days with friends at Orviston.

There will be preaching services in the United Brethren church on Sunday evening.

Mrs. Ella Confer visited her sister, Mrs. William Walker, at Milesburg, last week.

The ladies of the U. B. church will hold a festival here on Saturday evening, July 15.

Ralph Malone and Ross and Aaron Fetzer spent Sunday very pleasantly with T. H. Walker.

Lucetta Heaton returned home on Monday after spending a week with friends at Bellefonte.

A jolly crowd of young people from Yarnell spent the Fourth of July at Camp Merry-hurst, near Snow Shoe. All report having had a delightful time.

Scotia.

Whew! Oh, for an April snow storm.

John Behrers, of Waddle, and Charley Ghauer, of Marysville, were guests of honor at the Johnstonbaugh home on Sunday. When John and his good wife entertain there is no limit to the good things to eat.

Professor Thompson and wife, of Pittsburg, are spending their vacation with Miss Anna Grey, at "Echo Farm." The Professor has donned overalls and can be found in a cherry tree almost any day, while his good wife is busily engaged in the house, preparing the luscious fruit for the winter. There is only one time to get them, Billie, and that is now.

Wilson Sellers, a traveling salesman for a coffee company, with headquarters in Pittsburg, spent the Fourth on the old home farm, in Buffalo Run, with his mother and sisters. He is holding down a fine position. His territory covers a part of Ohio and West Virginia, but he has never seen any place that can be compared with the "old sod" in the beautiful Buffalo Run valley.

July 11th is always a "red letter" day for William Burnside, that being the day set apart for the outing of his friends up here, and let it be said that he can count them by the hundred. It always means a trip up to Purdue mountain and all who are invited are indeed fortunate. Those who remain at home miss something worth while, for what Billie doesn't know about entertaining on such an occasion could be balanced on a toothpick.

L. W. Bathurst and wife, of Graysville, Huntingdon County, were Sunday visitors at the John Haugh home, in Marysville. By the way, Levi was one of the first stationary engineers at Scotia, coming here with the first consignment of engines and remaining with them five years. When he left it was to take charge of a farm at Penna. Furnace. Two years later he engaged in mercantile business at Graysville, where he has prospered and now is able to put his feet under his own table and be monarch of all he surveys.

Fred Yocum, fore-runner for the Huyett-McNitt Lumber Company, started building their tram-road down along the P. R. R. on Thursday and is doing all the work with the men who have nothing to do these days at the mines. As a result, with what men are working on the flint and those working for Mr. Yocum, practically everybody who wants to work has something to do. The nice part of it is that Fred is one of those big, fat, jolly good fellows who can get a good day's work out of any man with kind words and an occasional little story.

The Fourth of July has come and gone, and our little burg was as quiet as a grave yard at midnight. After Burgess Burnside posted his proclamation we were almost afraid to crack a smile for fear of being fined, so the next best thing to do was to go where they let the eagle scream, which was either Hecla Park or Tyrone. Quite a bunch of the younger element went to the park, possibly curious to see how the Moose acted when on their own reservation. They found William Bottorf taking in the money with both hands with his automatic picture machine and A. C. Markley doing a rushing business in the liniment line. One of the young fellows wandered away from his friends and apparently got very lonely for some time. However, he happened to think of an old song that he used to know and which went something like this:

"For every boy that's lonely
There's a girl that's lonely, too."

The result was just what might have been expected. He didn't get home till morning.

Fiedler.

Mrs. Alice Bartges, of Altoona, is visiting her brothers, William and John Zeigler.

Miss Ruth Hinds has returned home after a pleasant visit of one week with Lock Haven friends.

Charles R. Hinds has gone to Plainfield, Ill., where he expects to be employed for some time.

Elmer Boob had two runaway accidents last week while making hay, resulting in demolishing two hay-rakes.

Milford Kramer's home is a happy place these days, a little son coming to stay. It is the first born and is a welcome visitor.

C. R. Hinds and Mrs. E. J. Hinds and daughter, Miss Ruth, attended the Moose picnic at Hecla Park on the Fourth of July.

Miss Lida Winkelblech has returned home after a very delightful visit to Lancaster, Niagara Falls, New York and Philadelphia.

Those on the sick list include Mrs. Michael Stover, Mrs. Charles W. Wolf and Mrs. Garrett. The last mentioned is 85 years old and is blind. She is being cared for by her daughter, Mrs. David Burd.

Among those recently visiting in this vicinity were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Limbert and Lewis Herr, of Altoona; Miss Mamie Burns, of Port Matilda; Miss Lottie Guisewite, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Owen and three children, from Renovo; Miss Orwig, of Hartleton; Miss Chestie Stover, of Coburn; Mrs. Catherine Fiedler and Mrs. Milton Fiedler, of Madisonburg; Mr. and Mrs. William Witmyer, of Bellefonte, and Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Sankey, of Millheim.

Smullton.

Eugene Smull spent Sunday at home.

Elias Breon is building a large addition to his barn.

Maggie Harry, of State College, is spending some time at home.

George H. Smull is home after a business trip to Minneapolis and other western points.

The Fourth was spent very quetly here this year. Many of our people spent the day at Spring Mills.

A very interesting game of baseball was played on Saturday between Millheim and Rebersburg. The score was 6—5, in favor of Rebersburg, twelve innings being necessary to produce a winner.

We are indebted to A. W. Houser, of Pleasant Gap, who this week called and advanced his subscription to "The Republican."

TROWBRIDGE CASE

A Lesson as to Circumstantial Evidence

By EDITH V. ROSS

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

The case of the state against Edith Trowbridge, a girl of twenty-two, had been tried before Judge Griffiths, and the evidence had proved her guilty beyond a doubt. The charge was grand larceny, though it was afterward changed to receiving stolen property. Some goods had been missed from a store. A woman was seen to take them and had been followed. She was tracked to an apartment house, where she was lost. Among others the apartments in which Miss Trowbridge lived was searched, and the articles—some lingerie—were found between the mattresses of her bed.

Miss Trowbridge had captured both judge and jury by her innocent and modest appearance, but the evidence was so strong against her that it was impossible for the twelve jurymen to acquit her. The judge gave her the lightest sentence the law would allow—two years in the penitentiary. But even so light a sentence was a horror to one who had been carefully reared and well educated. After it had been pronounced the prisoner, having been embraced by her mother, turned to George Whitcomb, to whom she was engaged to be married and on whose face were written horror and indignation.

"Cheer up, George!" she said. "You and I know that I am innocent. Two years will soon pass, and then we will be reunited."

"It's horrible!" was his only reply.

When Judge Griffiths left the courtroom at the end of a day's work he thrust from his mind, as was his custom, the scenes of the day. A happier scene to come took their place. In a few days would occur a birthday to his daughter, a girl just emerging from her teens, and her father was thinking of giving her a present of some article of jewelry. On his way home he stopped at Benkard's, the principal jeweler of the town. There he looked over various articles until his fancy was caught by a bracelet, a golden serpent with two ruby eyes. He asked the price, but found it to be greater than what he had laid out for his purpose. The salesman showed him others, which he examined approvingly, but always returned to the snake with the ruby eyes.

"I wish it," he said, "for my daughter, whose twentieth birthday comes around in a few days. But I'll not decide today. Perhaps I'll come in tomorrow."

When after Judge Griffiths' departure the clerk put away a dozen or more articles that he had been showing the judge he missed the bracelet. Frightened, he looked over every article on and in the case, thinking that he might have overlooked it, then on the floor to see if it had been dropped. The bracelet was not to be found.

One thing was certain—the bracelet had been taken. The salesman reported that while showing goods to an eminently respectable appearing gentleman a bracelet had been lost. A member of the firm questioned him closely, but got no further information than has been given here. The salesman had recently been given a position on trial. He was very anxious to make sales, and both he and his employer considered that his anxiety in this respect had momentarily diverted his attention from what every salesman must constantly be on the watch for—theft.

A week passed and nothing had been heard from the missing bracelet. Then one day an anonymous note in an evidently disguised hand was received at Benkard's. It was as follows:

"On Wednesday, the 7th of June last, I was in your store looking at some jewelry. I stood near a case at which a gentleman was examining different articles. I saw a lady standing at the same case. She picked up several articles, looked at them, examined the tags attached to them and put them down. While the salesman was intent on his customer she took up a bracelet, held it in both hands and examined it closely. She wore loose flowing sleeves, and while the salesman was examining the tag on a brooch for the purpose of learning its price she dropped the bracelet into one of her sleeves.

"The young lady was evidently not a common thief. At any rate, she was handsomely dressed. Curiosity led me to discover whom she was and what her object might be in stealing the bracelet. She went directly from the store, hurrying as soon as she reached the door. I followed her and saw her get on a trolley car. I boarded the car myself and left it when the thief left it. Passing off the main street, she turned into a residential avenue, stopped at a stone front dwelling and entered with a latchkey.

"The adventure interested me, and I took pains to investigate as to who lived in the house. I learned that it was the residence of a prominent citizen. Describing the girl thief to those who were familiar with the family, I was told that I had described his only daughter.

"I found myself in an unpleasant position. To accuse a young lady, the daughter of a respectable and influential man, of theft without corroborative evidence would be out of the question. To permit a theft without reporting it would be a violation of the duties of citizenship. After much thought I hit upon the following plan: I gave the facts to a detective agency and asked that it endeavor to put a man in the house with a view to making a search for the stolen property. It gave one of its best men the job, and by watching the house for some time he finally found the premises left in the care of a servant. Entering surreptitiously, he searched a room which he had taken pains to learn was the bedroom of the young lady I had seen at your store. He found the bracelet between the mattresses of her bed.

"Feeling that I have done even more than my duty, I leave the matter in your hands. If you will get out a warrant and search the second story back bedroom of 32 Warren street you will find your bracelet. At any rate, the detective saw it there less than an hour ago."

While Judge Griffiths was sitting on the bench—he had just pronounced sentence on a criminal—a hurry call came over the telephone for him to come home at once. He immediately adjourned the court and, calling a cab, drove to his residence. Hastily entering, he found his family in a most distressing situation. The house was in the hands of officers of the law, who had in their possession the identical ruby eyed bracelet he had thought of buying for his daughter's birthday present. It had been found between the mattresses of her bed.

That some of the constables recognized a judge of the criminal court did not absolve them from doing their duty. Miss Griffiths was taken by them in a carriage to court, her father accompanying her, where a charge of larceny was made against her. Her father gave bail for her appearance for trial, and she returned with him to their home.

A mystery loomed up before Judge Griffiths. Not for a moment did he suspect that his daughter was guilty of theft. What puzzled him was that he had examined this very bracelet with a view to buying it. He was sure that he could not have taken it from the store by mistake. And if he had done so how could it have come between the mattresses of his daughter's bed? But the mystery was nothing to the terror with which the incident inspired the judge. Without an explanation his daughter must be tried, convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary. On just such evidence he had sentenced hundreds of criminals.

He went at once to Benkard's and was closeted with the head of the firm.

On hearing the judge's errand, Mr. Benkard told him of the anonymous letter he had received and showed him another that had just come in apparently from a different person, authorizing him to say to Judge Griffiths that it would be to his advantage to recommend to the governor of the state that a pardon be granted to Edith Trowbridge, whom he had sentenced to serve two years in state prison. This was all the information received on the subject, except that Benkard had recovered his lost property by acting on the advice of his first correspondent.

For the first time the judge recalled the Trowbridge case. It was plain that some one interested in that case had planned an ingenious method of placing his daughter in the same position as that occupied by the girl he had sentenced. Furthermore, he saw at once that the scheme had been so adroitly managed that there was little hope of exposing the perpetrators.

Whether the scheme had been worked in the interest of an innocent or guilty person the judge did not know. He had no evidence to prove that a scheme had been worked at all that could be satisfactorily presented to a court. He went at once to the governor of the state and laid the case before him. The governor yielded to his solicitations and issued a pardon for Edith Trowbridge.

As soon as Miss Trowbridge was free Judge Griffiths received word that the person who had worked up the case against his daughter would explain on a promise of immunity. The judge, glad to remove the obloquy that rested upon his child, acceded to the terms and soon after received a visit from George Whitcomb, who said to him:

"You convicted an innocent girl on circumstantial evidence. After the trial I saw you walk up the street and enter a jewelry store. I went in after you, stood beside you at the counter, saw you look at the bracelet and heard all you said. When the clerk's back was turned and you were intent upon another article I saw an opportunity to steal the bracelet. To do so and make a plan for laying the theft at your door occurred to me. At the risk of you or some other criminal judge sending me where you sent Miss Trowbridge I slipped the bracelet into my sleeve.

"My object thus far was revenge upon you for sending an innocent girl, the girl I loved, to state prison. Then it occurred to me that my case would be stronger and my revenge greater if I could fix it on your daughter. A third idea was to show you the fallibility of circumstantial evidence, and, lastly, I saw an opportunity to compel you to use your influence to secure the release of the girl you had wrongfully sent to prison.

"I wrote the note to Benkard & Co. and employed a detective to steal into your house and place the bracelet between the mattresses of your daughter's bed."

When the marriage between George Whitcomb and Edith Trowbridge took place a handsome wedding present was received from Judge Griffiths.

Transformation of Tadpole.

If a tadpole cannot get to the top of the water when it is at the time of life when it is breathing by means of its gills, like a fish, it will not become a frog, says a writer in Browning's Magazine. It will then always be a tadpole.

Keep a tadpole in cold water and in the dark or away from the light and it will be years getting to be a frog. Left to the course of nature the tadpole becomes a frog in from six to eight weeks, although it will have two years arriving at that chance to change into the mature frog.

The tadpole's mouth is so tiny that it would be difficult to insert a pinhead into it, yet it has horny jaws and a sharp, biting beak, with three rows of teeth on the upper jaw. A hood grows down and incloses the gills on the right side, leaving them open like a spout on the left side.

At this stage of its transformation the tadpole breaths like a fish, taking water through the gills into the mouth and spouting it out on the left side.

Its tail is what the tadpole feeds on fly absorption of the white corpuscles of the blood during the moulting and mouthing epoch in its life, when it is fasting. When it is ready to eat again the wide mouth of the nature frog having taken the place of the latter.

There are forty species of frogs, only one of which is in South America. Australia has no frogs. Of all those forty species only one is edible—the Rana esculenta—and nowwhere is this one more plentiful than in America, although that eminent naturalist, St. George Mivart, declares that the edible frog is unknown in America.

A frog that is common in France will mew like a cat if its thigh is squeezed and emit the odor of garlic. For this it has to go through life bearing the name of Pelobates fuscus. Most species of frogs will not take anything in the way of food that is not a live, moving thing, orisomethinglwith the semblance of life, and will starve to death among a million creatures if none obliges the frog by moving.

Wise or Innocent?

He met her one night at a reception and asked her to go to the theater with him. She accepted, and, as they liked each other, they went again later. Then it got to be a weekly occurrence. Finally he got to thinking that he was solid enough with her to go out between the acts, and so he did. For several weeks he worked this and met with no rebuff. But she was thinking a lot, even though she wasn't saying anything.

One evening she said, "Why don't you go to the smoking room to smoke instead of going to the lobby?"

"Is—is there a smoking room inside?" he asked.

"Of course. You always say that you are going out to smoke, and it seems so useless to have to take your hat and coat every time. And if you thought of it beforehand you could buy those cigarettes that you seem to like—the ones that smell like cloves, you know—before you come."

He is wondering if she is as wise as it seems or as innocent as it appears.—Boston Traveler.

House Numbers.

Before the advent of the house number only business signs, coats of arms and house names marked the different buildings. Then, in London, for instance, one had to look for Mr. Jones, should he desire to call upon that man, in, say, "Whitechapel, not far from the Blue Boar." It is thought Berlin in 1795 was the first city to employ the numbering system. The German innovators did not put odd numbers on one side of their streets and even numbers on the other. They merely started from the Brandenburg gate and numbered straight ahead, taking no account of change of street. As they proceeded, therefore, the numbers grew higher, the height to which they attained being limited only by the supply of houses. The first house they numbered was No. 1, the last the number that betokened the total number of houses in the city.—St. Louis Republic.

An Author's Odd Aversion.

The "stoic" meal had attractions for Edward Fitzgerald, who, among his other peculiarities, hated to see people enjoying their food. On one occasion, after a man had finished a glass of wine in his company and gone out of the room, Fitzgerald remarked, with disgust: "Did you notice how he took up his glass? I am sure he likes it. Bah!" Fitzgerald himself, according to his biographer, Mr. A. C. Benson, "lived practically on bread and fruit, mostly apples and pears, even a turnip, with sometimes cheese or butter and milk puddings. But he was not a bigoted vegetarian. To avoid an appearance of singularity he would eat meat at other houses and provided it in plenty for his guests. But the only social meal he cared to join in was 'tea, pure and simple, with bread and butter.'"

Where Every One Is a "Majesty."

Who are the politest people in Europe? If common speech is any criterion, surely the Spaniard must carry off the palm. The author of "Heroic Spain" tells of many high flown phrases still in common use. You bid farewell with "Beso a V. la mano" (I kiss your hand) or "A los pies de V." (I am at your feet). The Usted, shortened to V., with which you address high or low, is a corruption of "your majesty." The love of abbreviations is a curious trait in a people with such leisurely ways; thus a row of cabalistic letters ends a letter: S. S. S. Q. B. S. M., which means that your correspondent kisses your hand—"su seguro servidor que besa su mano."

A King Who Could Change the Wind.

King Erricus of Sweden publicly confessed that he was a sorcerer and magician. He was the owner of an enchanted cap, which he pretended enabled him to control the spirits and change the direction of the winds at pleasure. So firmly did his subjects believe in the supernatural powers of their ruler that when a storm arose they would exclaim, "Ah, the king is again wearing his magic cap!"—London Mail.

Not Carrying It.

An Irishman met with an accident, but was only away from work two days. "Why didn't you stay home for a week?" a friend asked him. "You were carrying an insurance policy, weren't you?"

"I was not," said the Irishman. "The day of the accident I left it home in the bureau drawer."

Synonym.

"Say," asked Coakley, looking up from the letter he was writing, "do you know any expression that means the same as 'talking shop?'"

"Well," replied Joakley, "there is 'tonsorial emporium' and likewise 'hair cutting parlor.'"—Catholic Standard and Times.

Explaining It.

Mrs. Posey—Mercy, Hiram! Them awful society women dress like they was goin' swimmin'. Mr. Posey—O' course, Jerusha. Hain't you heard th't in th' soshul swim th' wimmen try to outstrip each other?—Milwaukee News.

As Usual.

Jokely—I got a batch of aeroplane jokes ready and sent them out last week. Bogga—What luck did you have with them? Jokely—Oh, they all came flying back.—Lippincott's.

Sensitive.

Stranger (in Pittsburg)—Do you have aldermen at large in this city?

Child Labor in Germany.

The most stringent regulations passed by the German goverment are those affecting children and women, and it is in this respect that the state has clearly in view the interests of the community as represented by its workers, says the Atlantic Monthly. The total number of children under fourteen years employed for special reasons and exempt by law in the manufacturing industries in Germany is about 1630.

These children are betweent thirteen and fourteen and the hours of employment are restricted to six, with half an hour interval for meals. Between fourteen and sixteen they may work not more than ten hours, they must have an hour's pause at midday and half an hour both in the forenoon and afternoon, unless their working day is not more than eight hours, no continuous period exceeds four hours.

During the rest periods any participation in work is forbidden; even remaining in the room is allowed only when their own department of the work is brought to a complete standstill. When past eighteen they cease to be youthful workers, and are under no special regulations, except that all under twenty-one most be provided with a "work book" or register, containing name, age, birthplace, nature of employment, date of engagement, discharge and other particulars.

All boys under eighteen are obliged to attend the continuation school for nine or ten hours during the week, where they receive instruction in the technical knowledge of their trade and religious instruction from their own clergyman. This time is taken out of the regular day work without loss of pay. In a number of larger engineering and machine shops the writer saw no youthful workers.

No Fun in this Fishing.

One out of every 400 persons in the United States is engaged in the task of catching enough fish to satisfy the appetites of the remaining 399. In other words, there are nearly a quarter of a million men who catch fish, not because they like the fun of it, but because they are paid for it, says Harper's Weekly. They catch approximately 1,000,000,000,000 pounds of fish a year, and this is worth upward of $50,000,000, or say two-thirds of the total capital invested in the industry. A considerable part of the capital, over $20,000,000, is tied up in vessels, of which a recent enumeration showed 85,115.

Maryland has by far the largest number of professional fishermen. Its figures are 42,812, as against 29,379 of Virginia, Maine with 16,945 and Massachusetts with 14,363 follow, and then comes Alaska with 13,106. Other states with more than 10,000 are North Carolina 12,045, New Jersey, 12,030 and New York 11,560.

It is Virginia, however, that catches the most fish. Its showing is 378,183,358 pounds, as against New York's 228,092,285 and Alaska's 165,325,990. But Alaska's catch is worth the most in the market—$10,000,000, or more than twice as much as the next two, New Jersey and Virginia. Alaska also has the most money invested in fishing boats, something above $3,000,000. Massachusetts is a trifle under the same figure. New York and Maryland have invested about $2,000,000, and Virginia, California and Maine all more than $1,000,000. Virginia has the most fishing vessels, 13,260 in number. Maryland's number 11,496, New Jersey's 7,084, Maine 6,238 and New York's 5,289.

A Georgia Sermonette.

"I ain't seen you for de longes'," said Brother Dickey to his friend, the Business Man, just returned from a trip east. "What an' whar hez you been, an' what hez you been a-doin' of? Tell me dat, now?"

"I'm just in from New York and Boston and Washington," was the reply, "I've been taking in the country generally."

"You must 'a see a lot." said Brother Dickey.

"Yes; had a fine time of it; met wide-awake people. They're a hustling crowd old man; they know how to get the best out of life."

"You reckon dey's a-gittin' it?"

"Seems so. Why, some of 'em own half a dozen automobiles—new one for every day of the week! And they're riding over the earth in airships whenever they feel like it. And talk about money—I saw fifty car loads of it—gold, silver and greenbacks—in the treasury vaults at Washington, then I spent a day with Congress—the fellows who think they're running the country, you know. Shook hands with our Georgia representatives. Fine lot o' boys in Congress, Brother Dickey."

"Well," said Brother Dickey, "is dat all?"

"That's about all I thought you'd care to know."

"I mean," said the old man, "is dat all you got outen it—all you fotched away wid you? Kaze, ef it is, I wants ter tell you dat yo' trip didn't set de river on fire! Is yo' got time ter liscen ter a few remarks what come into my min' whilst you was a-gwine on?"

"Ez ter de folks wid de half a dozen ortermobiles, I makes no doubt dat dey is speedin' so fas' dey'll go clear pas' de heavenly station, an' never rickernize de hills o' Zion 'tall. Ez ter de high buildin's, dey can't go higher'n God; an' es fer de flyin airships, no man kin fly so high but God kin t'row him down. You say dey got it all, but it ain't no good to have all now, an' bimeby have nothin! An' comin' ter dem fifty cyar loads o' money what you seen in Washington, tell me what good it's doin' dar—fer people wid empty pockets ter look at an' go 'way sorrowful? It's des rustin' for de want o' use. Ole Laz'rus is cryin' at de rich man's gate up dar same ez he done in de fur country yonder, an' what dey calls dem treasury watch dogs is barkin' at him.

"An, talkin' 'bout Congress, mabbe it's dar fer good, an mebbe it ain't. Ef some er de folks in it talks lak' dey did 'fo' dey got in, ten minutes dar would be too long fer me!

"I ain't a-faultin' nobody," the old man explained. "I'm dess passin' my opinions on what you been a-tellin' me. Baths.

A woman bordering on hysteria one night calls up her physician by telephone at a late hour, beseeching him to give her something to quiet her nerves, so that she could sleep. He directed her to run hot water into her bathtub, to sit in it and particularly to dip a turkish bath towel in it and let it rest over her entire spine. She was amazed over the result, soothing and comforting to the highest degree.

A good pure water bath is a tonic all can afford. The home woman who has worked hard all day till she has reached a "lifeless" feeling of weariness, takes a bath as a bracer just before dinner. Business women whose life is fatiguing appreciate its stimulation in the morning. Women with uncertain circulation should never jump into a tub of cold water, as the shock has a tendency to weaken the heart.

Sea salt makes a strengthening home bath. A handful of salt crystals should be put in a covered vessel of hot water and let remain to dissolve over night. In the morning pour it into a freshly drawn bath.

The camphorated bath is bracing. This is made by mixing two parts of camphor to one of tincture of benzoin and four of cologne in a bottle by shaking it well. Keep it tightly corked. When a bath of warm water is ready add enough of this mixture slowly drop by drop, to make the water slightly milky.

Toilet ammonia and various fragrant bath tablets and mixtures can be bought at any reliable drug store, only it is best to be informed concerning the ingredients in the compound.

As a rub down after a bath a mixture of three-fourths whisky and one-fourth hot water is more strengthening and less drying than alcohol.

A Crackerjack.

"I Suffered Years With My Back."

Backache resulting from weak kidneys, a bad cold or other cause, usually renders the sufferer unfit for work and often results in permanent disability.

"I suffered for years with my back, or kidney trouble, and have tried a number of remedies from different physicians. More than a year ago, one of our local druggists induced me to try and after using them some three months I found a decided improvement in my kidneys, and I am glad to say that I hope soon to be fully restored to health." J. P. ALLEN, Ex-Judge City Court, Glasgow, Ky.

As long as pain is present in any part of the body rest is impossible and the system becoming weakened is exposed to any form of disease to which the sufferer may be inclined.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills

by steadying the irritated nerve centers, make refreshing sleep possible, thereby enabling the body to recover lost strength. As a remedy for pain of any description Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are unsurpassed.

Sold by all druggists under a guarantee assuring the return of the price of the first box if no benefit results.

J. McClellan, of Stormstown, is a new subscriber to "The Republican."

We are indebted to John Graham, of Los Angeles, California, for an express company money order advancing his subscription to "The Republican" to July, 1912.

The weather these days is pretty hot, but not too hot for us to extend thanks to J. L. Aiken, of Milesburg, who while in town several days ago advanced his subscription to "The Republican."

We beg to acknowledge receipt of a kindly letter from Mrs. Harvey Stine, of State College, enclosing a crisp one dollar bill and instruction to advance her subscription to "The Republican" to July, 1912.

Mrs. Hugh N. Crider on Saturday entertained at dinner in honor of Miss Eleanor Franciscus, of Tyrone, the function being to announce the latter's engagement to James Berkstresser, of Pittsburg. The wedding will take place on October 19.

A new subscriber to "The Republican," enrolled a day or two ago, is Rush Yarnell, a Centre County boy who is "making good" out in Detroit, Michigan, which city is gaining prominence as the automobile manufacturing headquarters of the United States.

The annual Sunday school picnic of the Bellefonte United Evangelical church will be held on Saturday, next, July 15, at Hecla Park. The special train will leave Bellefonte at 8.15 A. M. For the accommodation of those who go from Pleasant View the train will stop there.

The second quarterly communion service will be held in the Bellefonte United Evangelical church on Sunday, next, at 10.30 A. M., and at 7.30 P. M. At the evening service Rev. H. A. Benfer, presiding elder of the Central District, will be present and preach the Word.

Professor James R. Hughes came in from the Hughes camp, near Snow Shoe, during the early part of the week, but only remained a short time, returning as quickly as possible to the woods to escape the intense heat. The camping party will break up and return home in the next few days.

Since Lewis Daggett took charge of the Bush House cigar store he has taken on quite a few new things. The handsome electric street sign was evidence of more enterprise than we are accustomed in the lower end of town. Before the novelty of that feature had even wore off, however, Lewis marked up an addition to the family in the shape of a bouncing baby girl.

Rev. C. W. Winey, pastor of the Bellefonte United Brethren church, has been attending the big Christian Endeavor convention at Atlantic City. On Sunday evening, next, he will tell his congregation about the proceedings of the convention. Mr. Winey will also have the congregation sing some of the songs written by Fanny Crosby, whom he had the pleasure of seeing while at Atlantic City.

D. I. Willard departed on Sunday for a two weeks' trip to Union City, his old home, and also to Niagara Falls. Mrs. Willard preceded him to Union City a short time ago. While in Niagara Falls Mr. and Mrs. Willard will attend a reunion of the Hayes family. Before her marriage Mrs. Willard was a Miss Hayes. During the absence of his father, Milton Willard is efficiently managing the Bellefonte store.

That ever-traveling ray of sunshine, D. C. Walter, of near Milesburg, dropped into our office just two days after the Fourth of July and advanced his subscription to "The Republican" another year. We joked him a little bit on his being two days late, for last year he called on the Fourth. For his sake we are very glad that he didn't travel so far on the Fourth, for he would have found our office closed on that day.

Charles Hughes, one of the hustling managers of the Bellefonte Academy, on July 1 enrolled a new student for that institution, although he will not start out on his tour of nearby states for several weeks yet. The new student will hardly qualify for this year's Latin and Greek classes, even though he takes a commanding place in the ball team. The young man was born at the hospital and is thriving nicely despite the hot weather.

Mr. and Mrs. Hezekiah Hoy have announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Caroline V. Hoy, to George B. Ely, the wedding ceremony having been performed at Harrisburg on Friday, June 30. Mr. Ely is one of the instructors at the Shippensburg Normal School. For a number of years the bride had charge of the kindergarden department in the Keystone Normal School, at Kutztown. Mr. and Mrs. Ely will spend a part of their honeymoon at the New York chautauqua and will be "at home" after September 1 at the Shippensburg Normal School.

James Bayard, who has been working in numerous job printing offices in Philadelphia during the winter months, was an arrival in Bellefonte several days ago. He probably will remain here for the summer. His sister, Miss Ursula Bayard, has been quite ill in Bellefonte for several weeks. She came here for the funeral of the late Mrs. R. B. Taylor and since that time her condition has been such as to give her friends no little concern. Another sister, Miss Sarah Bayard, who is employed in a Williamsport department store, has secured a leave of absence of four months and will be engaged during that time as a demonstrator on the Heinz pier, at Atlantic City.

Edgar T. Burnside, who is one of the big men in the Fairbanks-Morse Scale Company, with headquarters in Chicago, was greeting old Bellefonte friends over the Fourth of July. With "Burnie" age is but an incident and he looks just about the same as he did when he lived in Bellefonte. Jim. Corl, another former Bellefonter, now located in Chicago, was also home over the Fourth. Jim. is one of Harry Schreyer's right hand men and while he likes Chicago he still longs for old Bellefonte and the big front porch of the Elks clubshouse. When Jim's ship comes in he is going to move back to Bellefonte, buy a home and station a shotgun inside the front door for the first fellow who happens along with the suggestion that the old town isn't any good. Jim. says Bellefonte is the best ever. Of course it is.

"Liggett's Chocolates," finest made, get them at Green's.

Frederick Reynolds, Jr., several days ago received a Flanders runabout.

Beginning with July 31, next, the post office at Patton will become a postal bank.

William P. Humes last week lost a valuable farm horse, which was killed by the intense heat.

John Eckles, right hand man in Lew Gettig's butcher shop, is the proud father of a fine baby girl.

Miss Harriet Baird, of Milesburg, is visiting her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Haupt, at Tyrone.

A new reader of "The Republican" is John McGinley, of Bellefonte, whose name was enrolled several days ago.

Dr. R. G. H. Hayes has disposed of his old Franklin car and now is driving a Hudson, one of the handsomest cars in Bellefonte.

Mrs. Mary Miller, of Hagerstown, is a guest for the summer at the home of her mother, Mrs. Patsy Stewart, on West Linn Street.

Mrs. Ellis S. Shoeffer, of Madisonburg, was a Tyrone visitor over the Fourth of July. Her husband is the popular day clerk in the Ward House.

Miss Anna Joyce returned on Wednesday to her home in Jersey Shore after a delightful visit of one week at the Isaac Thomas home, in Bellefonte.

We wish to thank Edward Vaughn, of Sandy Ridge, for his welcome letter and enclosure of a one dollar bill to advance his subscription to "The Republican."

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Budinger, of Snow Shoe, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Edith, to Mr. J. Ellis Harvey, of Orviston. The wedding will be in the latter part of July.

It is said that George Sunday, the tailor, is the latest to catch the automobile fever. The attack promises to become serious and all indications are that the horse and wagons will have to go.

Mrs. Margaret I. Dean, of Panama, is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cooke, on Academy Hill. Mrs. W. R. Pearce, of Latrobe, is also a guest at the Cooke home, stopping over enroute to Milford, Delaware.

Word was received from Chicago yesterday to the effect that Mrs. Williams, wife of Rev. Elmer E. Williams, is ill from typhoid fever. Mr. Williams is a brother of E. J. Williams, of Unionville, clerk to the Commissioners.

Captain H. Rassler, of the Salvation Army, who has only been in Bellefonte a short time, will preach his farewell sermon on Sunday night, next. His subject will be: "Who is stoning Jesus in Bellefonte?" Everybody invited.

We are informed that the First National Nurseries, of Rochester, N. Y., desire a lady or gentleman representative in this section They are well rated in the commercial reports and state that they have one thousand acres in growing stock. Any one out of employment would do well to write them at once and enclose a copy of this notice. 4

Nelson Robb surprised his old home friends here by not only returning from the South last week but by bringing his family with him. Nelson has resigned his position as superintendent of a big telephone company in Mississippi and while he has not decided just what he will do all indications are that he will settle down in or nearby Bellefonte and forever and ever call this place home. That's what he should do.

Miss Emma E. Shriner, eldest daughter of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. W. P. Shriner, at one time residents of Bellefonte but now of Lock Haven, and Edward Day Curtis were married at Lock Haven on July 1. The wedding ceremony was performed by the bride's father. Mr. Curtis was until recently an instructor in the Lock Haven State Normal School. He now is head of the classical department of the New York Normal School, at Cortland, N. Y., at which place he and his bride will make their home.

Professor David O Etters has for several years been best known as the popular County Superintendent of Schools. Nowadays he is known as the grandfather of Miss Kathryn Etters, of Wilmington, Delaware. Miss Kathryn is the first born to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Etters and arrived just in time to help celebrate the Fourth of July. She was born on June 28 and the word was broken to Professor Etters while he happened to be in a tree picking cherries. As he hastily scrambled down, Professor Etters remarked to his wife: "It would never do to catch a grandfather up a tree."

The shopmen of the Tyrone division, P. R. R., will hold their first annual picnic on Saturday, July 22, at Hecla Park. In addition to the famous Tyrone band the Tyrone orchestra will be present and will furnish music for dancing in the pavilion. All kinds of athletic sports will be provided and many of the shopmen will be accompanied by their wives and children. It is planned making it a big basket picnic and a royal, good time is in store for all who attend. William T. Royer, at one time foreman in 'The Republican" office, and now employed in the Tyrone shops, is a member of the band and orchestra. He is a member of the committee having the picnic in charge, which is evidence that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company officials have chosen the best among their employees to take charge of the picnic. Mr. Royer, on behalf of the committee, extends a cordial invitation to the people of Bellefonte to attend the picnic.

H. G. Ebbs, who recently purchased Toner A. Hugg's ice cream manufacturing plant, at Milesburg, has an advertisement in this issue of "The Republican" to which we invite the attention of each one of our readers. Mr. Ebbs manufactures the highest grade of ice cream, made from strictly pure, rich cream. He sells at wholesale or retail and makes a specialty of furnishing ice cream for picnics, festivals, fairs, etc. His modern equipment gives him the great advantage of being able to fill any size of orders on the shortest possible notice. He has both telephones and delivers orders to all local points. An important point to keep in mind is that no matter how big the order maybe, or how quickly it is desired, Mr. Ebbs is so equipped that he can take care of it. He furnished all the ice cream used at the big picnic at Hecla Park on the Fourth of July and the unanimous verdict of the large crowd was that better ice cream was never served at the park.

Joseph D. Mitchell, of Burnham, was an arrival in town on Monday.

Ward Fleming, now a Philipsburg lawyer, was a Bellefonte visitor over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Burns Crider and children are enjoying an outing at Atlantic City.

Several parties of Bellefonters are this week camping at Curtin and also at Beech Creek.

Mrs. J.A. Aikens is at present visiting friends at Selinsgrove.

Miss Nellie Conley returned home on Monday evening after a delightful visit with friends at Tyrone.

Miss Katherine Curtin entertained today, at Curtin station, in honor of her sister Mrs. H. Laird Curtin.

Superintendent McAvoy, of the Bellefonte Electric Company, is enjoying the cooling breezes at Atlantic City.

The wedding of Miss Jane Harper, of Bellefonte, and Mr. Archibald Saxe, of Scranton, will be solemnized here in September. They will reside at Scranton.

Mrs. Nancy Hollar, of Wilkinsburg; Lewis Meese and son, of Pittsburg, and Mrs. Shuman Pletcher, of Howard, are visitinfi at the home of Mrs. John Meese.

Ensign Trood Bidwell, U. S. N., arrived home this week on a month's furlough and during that time will visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Bidwell.

William A. Aikey, of Curtin, is a new subscriber to "The Republican," a letter received on Monday enclosing a one dollar bill and instruction to send him the paper during the coming year.

Mary Orvis Harvey is the name oi a daughter born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Harvey, in Philadelphia. Mrs. Harvey was formerly Miss Bettie Orvis, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Ellis L. Orvis.

While harvesting about one mile and a half from Unionville, E. G. Way of Tuesday fell from a load of hay. He was unconscious until Wednesday morning. He is somewhat better but is still in a serious condition.

Commissioners' clerk E. J. Williams is a rather forlorn looking fellow these days. It's all because Mrs. Williams and the children are enjoying a visit of several weeks with her sister, Mrs. George Calhoun, at Sharpsburg, near Pittsburg.

Mrs. B. W. Shipley, of Unionville, was injured in a runaway accident on Tuesday. Her horse frightened and run off, throwing her out of the buggy onto her head and shoulders. A shoulder blade was dislocated and she was painfully bruised.

Lawyer Jim. Furst is the latest to join the ranks of the automobilists. Next thing he'll be joining the Benedicks. Last week Jim. purchased a second-hand Maxwell runabout and it only took him about fifteen minutes to become an old hand at the wheel. Looks as if Jim. is getting ready for a hustling campaign all through the county for District Attorney.

If young Henry Montgomery didn't have trout for breakfast a day or two before the Fourth of July it was because his father has too strong an appetite. Henry was fishing nearby the Bush House and caught a string of four or five beauties, one measuring something over 17 inches. As he carried it down the street the trout looked to be pretty nearly as big as Henry.

Mrs. Charles K. Rath, of Elizabeth, N. J., gave her parents, Mr. and Mrs F. W. Crider, a very nice surprise by unexpectedly arriving home on Monday evening for a week's visit. Mr. Rath, who is a district passenger agent for the Delaware & Lackawanna Railroad, was assigned to take charge of a party of tourists traveling over his company's lines, and Mrs. Rath took advantage of the opportunity to make a little visit to the parental home.

Big day For the Youngsters.

The Fouth of July was a big day for the youngsters of Bellefonte—youngsters of all ages, color, etc. Through the generosity of Bellefonte automobilists every youngster who wanted an automoblie ride got one. The children assembled in the Court House diamond at 9 o'clock in the morning. Twenty or more automobiles were in readiness and the children, as many as could be packed in each car, were hustled off on what to some was their first automobile ride. Each car made several trips and all remained in service until the last child had been given an outing. The idea for such an enjoyable experience for the children originated with Dr. Edith Schad. She suggested it to G. R. Spigelmyer. He in turn communicated with Robert F. Hunter and others of the Bellefonte Motor Club. The result was that the children of Bellefonte had the time of their lives. Several persons who did not happen to own automobiles hired them for the occasion. General Beaver paying for three cars and Mrs. Harry Keller paying for one. General Beaver, when he saw how the children enjoyed the outing, suggested that next year the plan be repeated and also that each child be treated to ice cream and "perhaps a cookie." Automobile owners who furnished cars for the occasion and who thus share in the thanks and appreciation of each child afforded an outing, were R. F. Hunter, Mrs. John Olewine, John S. Walker, Dr. Sebring, George A. Beezer, William Keichline, Charles Mench, A. C. Mingle, Charles R. Kurtz, Col. W. F. Reynolds, Dr. R. G. H. Hayes, M. I. Gardner, Robert Cole, Hugh N. Crider, T. Clayton Brown, Lloyd Rearick, Dr. DeLaun Stewart and Frank O'Brian.
